That's wot I can't go for ter see,
Vy to ther chafer* ther beak sent me;
Wot was I up for? Vy, a man
Can't live forever without any scran;
I hadn't a hair a hog in my kit,
And was werry hungry, and faint, and sick,
And on ther sly, like a goo-eeap oaf,
I collared of pannum a bit le loaf;
And then ther consequence was, yer see,
The cutty-eyed coppers they collared me!
"Vy, it's awful!" remarked the coffin—queer—
"Perfectly awful!" and sent me here
Along of a lot o' miserable wretches
To walk on ther chafer a couple o' stretches:
Wot d'yer think of that with yer level head?
Two stretches for only a loaf o' bread!

Now if only I wore a bang-up coat,
Was an out-and-outer and forged a note;
Or, 'coz another chap called my pitch,
I out with my snapper and just popped him;
Or, if I was a preacher and left in ther lurch
Some pretty young sister in my church;
Or else had bilked some rich old trot
Clean out of all the sugar she'd got;
Or happened to graft a savings-bank—
I wouldn't be furning this ere crank!
It's ten to one I wouldn't been copped,
For it isn't of as such blokes are shopped;
And if I was I'd have plenty of stuff,
And manage from starvin easy enough;
Away like a lambkin I would skip!
O, there's many a slip 'tween ther cup and ther lip!
My nobby pals ther beak would see,
And he'd say I was trembled with lunacy—
Or else ther jury wouldn't agree;
But 'coz I vos hungry, and feeling bad,
And in my kick hadn't nary a brad
And collared a wee little loaf o' bread—
"Vy, its perfectly awful!"—Now strike me dead!
If wot I read in the Ekey is true,
Those beaks should be doin' a turn here too!
Ah! what a sight it wood be ter see—
A peak on the chafer along o' me!

CLOSING IN.

Before Fred Janeway reached the Haunted House he had determined to enter it secretly, not through the window, as did Hubert Linwood on that memorable night, but by means of the key which he was fortunate enough to have in his possession, his aim being both to enter and leave, if possible, without it being known. When it is considered, too, that he expected to secure something to take away with him, it will be seen that he had ventured upon an unquestionably delicate errand—one that bore enough semblance to downright burglary, to cause him to experience something of the sensations of those gentry when venturing upon such unlawful proceedings. Having laid out his plan of action, he waited upon the outside but a few minutes, when he stepped softly upon the broad stone step, through which Hubert Linwood had vainly attempted to make his way, and stealthily tried the door. As he expected, he found it securely locked, and producing the key it was opened with an ease and quiet which proved that the same thing had not been done unfrequently. Closing it behind him, he withdrew the key without turning it again, thinking it probable that he might need an untrammeled means of exit, when he should come to make his departure. He saw at once that he was in a broad, old-fashioned hall, dimly illuminated through a partly open door. Pausing a moment, he walked forward on tip-toe, and peeped into the same empty room into which Hubert had passed, where on the same hearth a pile of fagots were dimly burning. A glance about this apartment showed that there was nothing there which he was seeking; but communicating with it was a door that he believed opened into the room where he hoped he would secure what he so eagerly sought. Trying the door, it opened without difficulty, but the interior was so dark that he stirred up the fire in order to gain sufficient light, after which he pushed wide open the door, and gained a dim view of the interior. This was also without carpet, but there were several chairs, and, directly opposite from where he stood, a small table or stand upon which several books were piled.

Fred had just taken in this much, when he heard a noise directly overhead, as if made by a person walking hurriedly, and he stood still, tremblingly listening to learn whether he was the cause of this excitement. But the noise ceased as suddenly as it had begun, and he stepped hastily forward, and piling the three books brought them out to the light, stooping down and examining them by the burning fagots. The first was a book of Common Prayer, which he hastily glanced over, and found to be of no use; the second was "Harvey's Meditations," which was equally useless for his purposes. The third and last was a small bound volume of the Holy Bible. It was old and yellow and worn, but scarcely pausing to note this, he turned hastily to the record of "Births, Marriages and Deaths." One eager, searching glance, and Fred Janeway staggered to his feet.

"Eureka! I have found it!"

Found what? He had identified the owner of the pistol which slew Jacob Gorgitt and his wife! Despite the confident expectation with which the young lawyer had ventured so stealthily into the Haunted House, this sudden and complete success of the search unnerved him for the time, and he stood trembling by the hearthstone, as if he had just committed some irremediable tragedy. And while standing thus, he heard the door through which he had entered abruptly opened and a heavy step in the hall, followed instantly by the slamming-to of the door, and the hasty moving-forward of a man along the hall. Certain that he was about to enter the room in which he was standing, Fred moved as quickly and silently as he could through the second door into the side room, pushing it to, but not daring to shut it entirely lest it should be heard. Sure enough, he had scarcely done this, when the stranger stepped in with the quick, heavy tread of a man who was at home. Fred stood, with a throbbing heart, listening and affrighted, for his situation was anything but a pleasant one, with the prospect of being detected in an unlawful, and what would seem an unwarrantable act.

"This looks odd," muttered the man to himself, but loud enough to be heard; "the front door unfastened and the fire burning brightly. I wonder if anybody has been in here. Hello! that door has been disturbed, too."

He had scarcely said this when he shoved the door open, thrust his head in and stared around. The room was so dimly lighted that he failed to see the dark figure shrinking up against the wall, and he seemed to be on the point of withdrawing again, when an impulse, which seems natural at such times, prompted him to enter the room and make a thorough search. Concealment was no longer possible, and Fred Janeway stepped out to view, holding his pistol levelled, and speaking in a gruff voice, the opposite of what he had used when stopped on the road, but more in keeping with his character.

"Keep your hands off; I will not harm you!"

"What the mischief are you doing here?"

"Never mind; I find this isn't a pleasant place to spend the night, so I will withdraw."

During the short interval that had been allowed Fred, he had managed to replace two of the books upon the stand and had dextrously concealed the Bible under his coat. Holding his man covered with the pistol, he began backing toward the door into the next room, and with the same awkward gait retreated through into the hall, along which he passed more rapidly, and with a sigh of relief at last found himself upon the stone slab on the outside. His antagonist had not attempted to follow him, but still Fred did not feel disposed to trust him, and if he didn't exactly run, he made what might be termed rather "tall walking" toward the main road. He had not reached it, when bang went a musket from the door through which he had so recently passed, and the whizz of the ball close to his head left no doubt of who the target was. Fred desired above everything else to avoid a personal encounter with this man, and, as soon as he reached the main road, he increased his gait almost to a run, looking around and listening to see whether he was pursued or not. There was no moon yet to be seen in the sky, and it was so dark that he could not discern objects a hundred feet distant; but the road was familiar to him, and he walked unhesitatingly along, never once doubling his steps.

My readers will understand that the lawyer for the past few weeks had had sufficient matters upon his mind to break down an ordinary man. Added to this was the extraordinary development of the present evening; and, as he walked along, he became sensible of a dizzy, weak feeling, which he was afraid was the presage of sickness close at hand.

"I hope not," he murmured, as he drew his hand across his hot forehead. "I cannot afford to get sick now, when there is so much at stake. Scarcely six weeks yet intervene between the present and the time appointed for Hubert to die. I feel that his fate, in a certain sense, is in my hands, and it would be an appalling calamity if I should be deprived of my usefulness at this time."

Beyond a doubt this very anxiety of Fred's—so intense and deep—militated against him, for before he reached home that night he became well satisfied that he was physically out of condition and that his system required immediate attention.

"I will stay over a day or two at home and put myself in father's hands," he concluded. "He will know what the matter is with me, and will fetch me up quicker than anyone else."

He entered the rear of the house, in the familiar way of childhood, where he found his mother waiting, and instantly began doffing his disguise, removing his fiery, bushy whiskers and handing the dilapidated garments to his parent, who placed them away as tenderly as if they composed his wedding-suit. When at last he was arrayed in his own apparel, and had taken the old easy chair with his slippered feet to the mild fire upon the hearth, with his mother busying herself in preparing a rather late tea, the familiar step of the old doctor was heard, and he shortly after entered, straight, erect and vigorous as ever.

"Well, bub," said he, shaking hands with his son and addressing him in the old familiar way, "you got back from your lark rather sooner than you expected."

"Yes; I was quite successful—fudge!"

This latter exclamation was caused by the sound of the knocker upon the front door, causing the conviction that there was a peremptory call for the services of the doctor. Fred was in hopes that the remainder of the evening would be given them; but a physician, and, above all, a village or country one, is the slave who can command none of his time with any certainty.

"I will go," said the doctor, as his wife was about to obey the summons; "it may be some one that I can put off till morning."

The door was scarcely drawn back when a loud, angry voice was heard.

"Haven't you seen him, doctor? He passed round toward the rear of your house. The scoundrel ought to be shot, and I gave him a parting salute."

"Whom do you mean?" asked the amazed physician. "I don't know what you are talking about."

"Why, that burglar slipped into my house to-night and stole my Bible and I do not know what else (hope he'll read it, and it may do him good), drew a pistol on me and came near blowing my brains out, and then came down this way. I followed him the whole distance and saw him go round to the rear of your house. Haven't you seen anything of him?"

"I just came in by the back way and saw nothing of a burglar. He may have passed on by when he found this was the house of a doctor, who may cup and bleed, but can't be bled himself," replied the old physician, who at rare intervals indulged in a little humor, and who knew well enough that his visitor was referring to Fred, whose disguise he knew nothing about.

"How long have you been in?"

"Only a few minutes."

"Then he may have presented himself to your wife and made trouble here."

"Suppose you come in and ask her, to satisfy yourself."

The doctor uttered the last exclamation somewhat impatiently and in a loud voice, while he delayed his passage through the hall, so as to give Fred opportunity to slip out in time to avoid observation. This was unnecessary, as he had learned by this time to do that sort of business to perfection, and long before the two had entered the room he had dodged out, carrying with him all evidence that might betray his presence in the house. Mrs. Janeway confronted the visitor, and in reply to his rather impertinent questions told him that they had not been troubled by any burglarious gentry, and intimated rather plainly her opinion of this sort of treatment. Still unabashed by her words, the visitor remained standing and looking curiously about the room, as if he was dissatisfied.

"Is there anything more you want?" asked old Dr. Janeway, whose temper began to rise at this exasperating impudence.

"Well, I suppose I'll have to be satisfied," was the reply of the visitor, who was looking suspiciously at the door through which Fred had vanished.

"I think you'll have to be too," exclaimed the thoroughly indignant physician. "I consider you an impertinent intruder, and advise you to clear out, just as quickly as you know how."

"See here," said the man, with a brazen assurance that was literally astonishing, "where is your son, Fred?"

"Go down to Richmond and ask at his office, and perhaps you will find out," was the growing reply.

"I hardly think I would find out there. The fact is, it's my opinion that this is the place in which a successful search could be made for him."

"And the fact is, I consider you an ill-mannered dog, and if you don't get out of my house I'll pitch you out neck and heels."

There was no mistaking this "hint," and, with a glare toward the room into which, as something seemed to tell him, his "man" had vanished, he turned about and went out the door, banging it so violently after him that the old doctor, provoked beyond endurance, started after him and still would have inflicted some castigation in the way of punishment for his insolence, when his wife caught him by the arm and drew him back, and he savagely resumed his seat, while Fred came back and joined them, scarcely less indignant at the manner in which his parents had been used. This little storm, however, speedily blew over, and they drew around the supper-table. Fred drank a cup of tea, but shook his head when pressed to take more, saying that he had no appetite and was quite unwell.

"You've got a bad look," said the old doctor, scanning him narrowly, "and I noticed it when I came in. Let me see your tongue."

At the same time he took his wrist in his hand and made his preliminary "diagnosis." This lasted some time, and the result of it was the declaration that he was threatened with a dangerous attack of typhoidal or "enteric" fever, as it has been known since the sickness of the Prince of Wales.

"You are in for a tedious spell of sickness," said the old doctor; "but you will come through all right, though it is going to take you some weeks to do it."

Fred groaned in agony of spirit.

"What's the matter, what's the matter?" asked the old doctor. "You aint afraid of a little sickness, are you?"

"No; it aint that, father, but Hubert Linwood is doomed unless I get to Richmond by the end of a month."

"Oh, you will be out again in time to finish up that business," replied the old doctor, thereby making an assertion which caused him a little compunction of conscience, as, with his keen professional vision sharpened by long years of practice, he detected signs in the appearance of his son which caused him considerable uneasiness.

Fred took to his room at once, and was fortunate in that he had a skillful physician to take him in hand at once. When he was as comfortable as possible in bed, and his devoted mother had retired, he said to his father:

"If I am going to lie helpless here for several weeks, unable to reason and perhaps out of my mind altogether, there are several things that must be attended to at once, either by you or me."

The physician sat by his bedside, and while waiting for him to explain, said:

"You must have your mind as easy as possible, and so, if there is anything to be done, it is best to do it now."

"In the first place, you understand that when he called here a short time ago, and said that some tramp had purloined his Bible, you knew of course that I was the guilty person."

The doctor nodded his head in the affirmative.

"It gives me a twinge or two to confess it, but in this case I must plead that the end justifies the means. The holy volume lies there upon the chair; whatever may happen, you must so conceal that, that no one can lay hands upon it but yourself, and you must hold it sacredly for me until I recover."

"It shall be done, my son," said the father in a quiet voice, but with a compression of lips which proved his earnestness.

"You will never regret it; now, am I able to write a letter?"

With a decided shake of the head:

"Utterly out of the question."

"Then will you do it for me?"

"Of course," was the answer, as Doctor Janeway, moved to a side-desk, where there was writing material.

"I am ready," said he, with quill in hand.

"Perhaps you will not be quite so ready, when you learn to whom it is to be addressed. Only a few lines are necessary, to be sent to Hubert Linwood."

The old physician paused aghast; for certainly he could hold no communication with that condemned criminal, especially when their mutual relations were so well understood by each other.

But the gordian knot was cut by Fred, who said:

"You need not tell him that you had any hand in it at all. Simply state that I am taken down with a sickness that will probably incapacitate me for several weeks, but that I have already finished my work here, and the triumph of right is insured, and then sign my name to it."

Only out of love for his child did old Doctor Janeway consent to do that, which he could not well refuse, and which he saw was demanded by the welfare of the patient himself. As it was, it cost him a good deal of labor, and it cannot be said that he succeeded admirably well.

"TIDEWAY, May 20th, 17—

"HUBERT LINWOOD—SIR.—I have just been taken down with a severe sickness, which will keep me at home for several weeks; but I beg to assure you that I have completed the errand that brought me here, and have met with perfect success. Keep up a good heart, for right is sure to triumph, and I haven't the least doubt but that you will be hung on the day appointed.

"F. JANEWAY."

Despite the fever that was already beginning to torture Fred, he laughed outright when his father read this missive to him in a clear, solemn voice.

"What's the matter?" he demanded, rather savagely, as he heard and saw the mirth of his son. "Don't that suit?"

"It's capital, excepting the last sentence."

"What's the matter with that?"

"I am afraid it will not comfort him much."

"He don't deserve any comfort, the infamous wretch."

"But seriously, father, I will be obliged to you if you will carefully cross it out."

The irate doctor held off a little, but finally did it to oblige him, protesting that it was an outrage for him to yield such a point as that.

"Is that all?" he demanded, facing about again.

"You know Evelyn Hewlett lies at the house of Alice Appleton, quite sick also—but will probably speedily recover. I would like her to understand the cause of my prolonged absence. Perhaps it would be well for you to address a note to Miss Appleton, stating about the same thing. Be sure to sign that with your own name," added Fred, with a still brighter flush upon his face and an increased palpitation of his heart.

"That's easily enough done," remarked Doctor Janeway, as he rattled the quill hastily over the paper.

"MY DEAR MISS APPLETON.—At the request of my son, I beg to state that he has just been taken down with a severe case of nervousness, which will undoubtedly keep him under my hands for several weeks. Will you be kind enough to state this to Evelyn at soon as she is able to hear it, and to say that all, as well and right is sure to triumph in the end? Convey to Evelyn my regards, and accept my distinguished consideration.

"ABDIJAH JANEWAY."

"How will that answer?" asked the physician, wheeling his chair around and facing his son.

"It is perfect; couldn't be better."

"Anything more to be done?"

"Nothing that occurs to me at present."

"You had better relieve your mind now, for I shall not permit any more of this after to-night."

Fred tried to think, with might and main, whether there was anything more that was necessary, but he could recall nothing, except some unimportant office matters, which he concluded to let go.

"No, my dear father; you have done everything necessary. I place myself entirely in your hands, and all that I ask is that you make certain that I am on my feet again before this month expires."

"Very well; here is a dose to begin with, and no more business now in words or thought."

Having administered the dose and carefully noted his appearance, he let his wife make his position as comfortable as possible in bed, while he returned to seal and direct the letters. Envelopes, those modern conveniences, were hardly known in those days, and it was somewhat of a job carefully to fold up and place the sealing wax upon them. It was finally accomplished, and then Doctor Janeway proceeded to address them. The one intended for Hubert Linwood was directed to Miss Alice Appleton, and the one that she ought to have received was superscribed with his name in the bold, angular chirography of the old physician. An hour went safely and were delivered precisely as addressed.

CHAPTER XXIV.

TWO DESPAIRING HEARTS.

A month and more has passed since the sentence of Hubert Linwood, and he still lies in irons in jail and has not yet seen Fred Janeway since his departure for Tideway, nor has he received any knowledge of his condition, other than the misdirected note which came to him, and which, through the assistance of the warden, he succeeded in having exchanged with the one in the hands of Alice Appleton, and which came to her after the receipt of the severe indisposition of Evelyn. And thus he was left alone week after week without word from either of his dear friends, and with that dark, awful Friday steadily drawing nigher and nigher, until it was now less than a week distant, and yet he knew not whether a single step had been taken to ward securing his pardon or reprieve; and he experienced all that dreadful, shivering, soul-crushing horror which comes over one, when he sees himself unable to escape a fatal peril that is steadily advancing upon him.

He was innocent, and Fred Janeway had those proofs in his possession, and now the hand of affliction was upon him, and for aught he knew he was dead, in which case he saw that he himself was doomed beyond all possible hope of escape. During the last memorable interview with Evelyn in his cell, had experienced such a change of feeling that his desire for life was almost as great, as if he he had the prospect of securing her as his wife; added to which was a natural repugnance, loathing and horror, as he contemplated the ignominious character of that death, now so close at hand. The young sea-captain was standing in his cell tossing his clenched hands above his head, upon the depths of gloom and despondency, when he heard the warden's well known rap, rap, rap, upon the door, followed instantly by the announce nent:—

"A lady to see you, sir."

"Admit her," called back Hubert, certain of her identity.

As the door drew back Evelyn stepped into the cell. She was dressed in black and closely veiled at first, but as she threw back the screen from her face, even Hubert was startled at her appearance. Her month of sickness had told fearfully upon her; she was pale and wasted, but with her remarkable beauty greater, if possible, than before. It was intensified, so to speak, and so spiritualized in its character, that the conviction instantly came over him that she had not long to remain upon earth. Her calamity and woe had become greater than she could bear.

As Hubert placed his arms about her form, and drew her to him, kissing the upturned face, something like a shudder passed over him, as he felt so plainly the difference in her figure and weight.

"Evelyn, my dearest," said he, with unutterable tenderness, "you have been sick."

"Do you notice it in my appearance?"

"You would have been here long ago, had you been able to come," he replied, deftly eluding her question.

"I am still weak," said she, sinking into the chair which he offered her, "and when the doctor left this morning he positively forbade me going out for a week yet."

"Why did you not obey him?" he asked with a faint smile.

"I would have come had I been certain that my life would be the penalty," she answered. "I was not able even to dictate a note to you."

"Have you heard from Fred Janeway within a week?"

"Yes, he is still too sick to be moved, or was a week ago. If I can stand the journey I am going to Tideway to-morrow to see him."

"You must not think of it, dearest."

"My mind is made up," said she faintly. "Alice and I will go together in their carriage, starting early in the morning so as to reach his home by evening."

"But seriously, father, I will be obliged to you if you will carefully cross it out."

The irate doctor held off a little, but finally did it to oblige him, protesting that it was an outrage for him to yield such a point as that.

"Is that all?" he demanded, facing about again.

C. K. F.—1. There is no apparent contradiction between the terms "seven" and "sevens," and you have not yet been taught how to play casino. A player can raise his opponent's build of "seven" as high as ten, but he cannot raise a build of "seven" to eight, nine or ten, because (for one sufficient reason) it already counts at least fourteen. 2. You cannot raise what has already been built except by a card in your hand, and even then only when the build is in the singular. Hence you cannot take with a ten a build of six and a build of four, since by so doing you would be raising either build by cards from the board, instead of from your hand. 3. There are standard rules for the game. 4. Under those rules 21 points constitute game; or it can be played in hands best two in three, or you can make it 10 or 15,000 up.

W. R. H., Orange, N. J.—The Kensington riots in Philadelphia took place in May, 1844, and the more fatal riots in Southwark followed in July, 1844, the military opening fire on the people at or about six o'clock in the evening of Sunday, July 7th; this was the signal for a street-fight between the soldiers and crowd which lasted nearly all night, cannon and small arms being freely used on both sides. Many lives were lost, and hundreds of persons were wounded. The withdrawal of the military on the following day prevented further carnage, as preparations had been made to renew the conflict on a more extended scale of offence and defence.

It is our impression that the losses since the organization of the paid fire department of this city have been much less than for the same years next preceding, despite the natural increase in the number of fires; we cannot decide, however, as we are unable to obtain a record of losses under the old department. 2. The losses under the paid department for the years ending Nov. 30th, from 1868 to 1872 inclusive, foot up $28,247,180, nearly one-half of which was incurred during the latter year. During the same years there were 796 fires, while the 4,721 fires in 1869-70-71-72 entail a loss of but $9,778,779. These figures serve to indicate the efficiency with which the department has attained.

A cannot build an ace and a six to seven, to help his partner, who (unless he can match the six) must pair himself has a seven in his hand. 3. Casino is properly a single-handed game. Aside from sociability, there is little or nothing to commend it as a game of partners.

AMATEUR, Pittsburgh.—Since you have comprehended in your wager the two months of January and February of 1873, as to which there will be no official figures until next year, we can only refer you to the prosecuting officer in every county in the United States. Better submit the question undecided, or indefinite, but whether they amount to 75 per cent. is a grave question.

RUSSELL, Fort Columbus.—The Ninth regiment, at the funeral of the late Col Fisk, paraded quite as many files as it is expected of militia organizations to do on other than inspection-day. It struck us at the time that a large majority of the members were out, but of course we cannot say positively, in the absence of the regimental muster-roll.

COON, Philadelphia, Pa.—1. You can buy prepared burnt cork of Shannon, Miller & Crane, as per their advertisement. 2. Soap and water will readily remove it. 3. Amateur clog and song and dance performers cannot command any salary until they establish some reputation.

B. J., Youngstown, O.—Other oils than linseed are sometimes used for oiling walnut furniture. 2. Linseed is the most used, and boiled linseed are preferable to raw linseed oil. 3. Varnish is tried. 4. We have not heard of the Huntings for some time. Watch our variety summary.

J. S., Chicago.—1. Only one party can go alone at euchre, and that is the one who chooses either makes alone or orders up the trump. 2. If a player goes alone against the party who first announced his intention to go alone, he can only score two points for a euchre if he takes all five tricks.

QUINCEADO, NO. 2.—We cannot tell you where you can obtain the songs and sayings referred to. 2. The prices for arranging music for songs or songs and dances vary so much that you had better consult somewhat intelligently with the leader of some variety theatre.

BILLY LACKADAY, Boston, Mass.—1. Attend a representation of the play, and commit the speech to memory; or address a letter to Mr. Jefferson, and state what you wish it for, and he will probably send you a copy of it. 2. We have it in our budget, and may probably use it at some future time.

F. S.—If you can prove that the title was first copyrighted by you—and the reply to a letter addressed to the Librarian of Congress asking that question will settle the fact—you can obtain an injunction against any and all parties who may use that title, whether of the same character or not.

LOTTERIES, Boston.—1. Without expressing a positive opinion, we think the party named is reliable. 2. The lottery referred to we believe to be fraudulent, but it is not our province to act primarily in the interest of private parties, but the prizes offered will, we believe, be paid.

CHICKERINGS AGAIN, Highlands, Boston.—If a man sells a horse for $40 and then buys it back for $45 he clearly makes $5 on that transaction. If then, having bought him for $40, he sells him again for $60, he makes $10 on that trade. The first $5 and the second $10 added together make $15.

CHARLEY BRADY, Boston, Mass.—1. Pronounced as if spelled bom-e-de-en. 2. "Kansas Jack" and "Buffalo Bill" have fought the Indians on the plains. 3. We do not answer such questions. 4. We must not the name Kelly; there are two of that name, one a light and the other a heavy weight.

CLIPPER READER, Canandaigua.—1. The length of Broad street, in the city of Philadelphia, is more than twelve miles. 2. Broadway in New York, from Bloomingdale road to the continuation (and part), is of itself a fraction over five and three quarter miles in length.

GUS KEARN.—1. Dutch comedians or song and dance men can secure the names of theatrical managers in any of the cities we name by others or not. 2. You can copyright the words without the music. 3. From $30 to $75, according to ability and reputation.

O. H., Maltby House, Baltimore.—The value of a straight is variously estimated. In some games it takes precedence of a flush, three of a kind. Its value should be agreed upon before commencing play.

M. D., Vancouver, O.—A player can take a tray out of his own hand, and combining it with a tray and a deuce on the board, call it eight, provided he holds an eight in hand. This answers all three questions.

WILLIAMSON.—1. You neglect to state the distance. 2. Hamill's races with Kelley were rowed on the Tyne, Eng. He never pulled a race on the Thames. 3. No record. 4. Their fast time, which was made in a private trial, was 2:26.

R. J. T., Philadelphia, Pa.—Miss Agnes Ethel made her debut on the stage on Oct. 10th, 1868, at the Union League Club Theatre, and on the regular dramatic stage at the Fifth Avenue Theatre on Aug. 18th, 1869.

KLONDYKE, Saratoga, N. Y.—1. Thin-faced people, in making up their faces so as to appear on the stage like full-faced persons, use a padding of cotton colored like the skin. 2. There is no such book published. 3. From $30 to $100, according to quality.

W. H., West End Cliff, Wis.—Address Puget Sound, Washington Territory. 2. The best way to reach there is via San Francisco. Cal. 3. We do not know how much per day is paid for lumbermen there.

G. H., Danbury, Conn.—Engine No. 44 was called "Live Oak," and laid in East Houston street. Engine 34 was "Red Rover," and laid in Morton street; and engine 38 was "Southwark," and laid in Amity street.

ROSSO, St. Louis, Mo.—1. Miss Nellson acts Pauline in "The Lady of Lyons." 2. She will make a visit to Europe this summer, and return here next season.

F. C., South Boston, Mass.—1. Cannot say. 2. Yes. 3. Do not know. 4. From $35 to $60 per week, according to ability. We do not require such.

REGULAR SUBSCRIBER, Virginia City, Nevada.—1. John McCullough was born in Ireland. 2. Lawrence F. Barrett was born in New York.

TOBACCO, Hartford, Conn.—We have reported every engagement performed by Miss Neilson since her arrival in this country. See the regular summary for account whereabouts.

F. H., Hartford, Conn.—The Stadt Theatre is now open. Had you read last week's CLIPPER you would have seen a report of the performances of Mr. Thatcher.

CONSTANT READER, Trenton.—1. There is no such thing in legitimate euchre as discarding and calling for your partner's best card. 2. We do not require one.

J. H. W., Saratoga Springs, Penn.—1. Lucy never made as fast time as Goldsmith Maid. 2. We cannot decide the point whether there originally in the United States a man 130 years old.

REGULAR, Buffalo, N. Y.—There is no rule to prevent O and D from playing with the last three trumps. 2. Turn over Heart's Content. 3. General Lee surrendered on April 9th, 1865.

M. W., Brooklyn.—There are no recognized rules governing railroad euchre, and those who play it must must make their own.

M. J., Newark, O.—1. By advertising in the CLIPPER you may obtain such a situation. An advertisement would cost you ten cents a line for each insertion.

GRAND STREET, Jersey City.—It is too late in the day for verses on that subject to be of interest. Besides, they are not good, and you would not be pleased to see them in print.

CONSTITUE.—Sig. Farini, an Italian, crossed the river at Niagara Falls on the same rope with Blondin during the week ending Sept. 1st, 1860.

JUSTICE, Detroit.—1. You win. 2. John McDevitt made his largest run at the Cooper Institute, in this city, playing against William Goldthwait.

W. A.—1. Send 60 cents to Ed. James for the "Modern Gymnast." 2. Trapeze performers never use cast-steel bars. Wooden ones are used.

W. B., Danville, Pa.—1. John Heenan and Tom Sayers fought April 17th, 1860. 2. There is no record of fast time made by steamer from Galway to New York.

G. Q. A., Washington, D. C.—Your opponent having built "deuces" prevents your building on it or taking it with any other card except a deuce.

CONSTANT READER.—A straight flush will not beat four of a kind at poker, unless by special agreement made before commencing play.

H. O. B., Boston.—The popular vote for Grant at the late Presidential election was 3,597,070; for Greeley, 2,834,079; majority for Grant, 762,991. B, therefore, wins the bet.

E. A. L.—If the officers of a club are elected before the constitution and bye-laws are framed, they are only appointed pro tem., and another election must be held after properly organizing.

ENQUIRER.—Assuming that the tare of the barrels is the same in both cases, the yield at $1 90 per barrel of 280 lb. is, by a fractional amount, the lower offer of the two.

J. O'B., Salem, Mass.—O is right; they never fought previous to their arrival in this country, though they were matched in England.

MILLER, Baltimore.—Yes; the party mentioned defeated Billy Kelly at Strickland, Pa., Nov. 27th, 1867, the number of rounds fought being 111.

F. D.—Dan Bryant has acted without cork upon face in many of the principal cities of this country. 2. "The Scouts of the Prairie."

GYPSY.—We have no knowledge of the whereabouts of the gentleman named. If still in this country, a letter addressed to him in care of the CLIPPER should reach him.

CONSTANT READER, Charlestown, Mass.—Enough to purchase trappes and costumes, the price of which would depend entirely upon the quality of the material used.

OCCASIONAL, Baltimore, Ind.—They held fourth position. 2. There is no special name for the second title of a book or play. 3. Martin W. Hanley.

FAIR PLAY, Sag Harbor.—D was wrong. When B asked him how he liked the cards dealt, it only gave him the option of proposing to either pass, bunch or play them.

FRANK, Albany, N. Y.—We believe he is still traveling with "old" John Robinson's Circus. A letter addressed in care of the CLIPPER will reach him.

RUSS JONES, Woodstore.—1. The card enclosed does not belong to a regular pack of euchre cards, and is only an advertising dodge. 2. Dan Rice is living.

E. M. G.—The largest hand that can be held at cribbage is 29; three fours and a jack in hand, and a five turned up of the same suit as the jack held in hand.

READER, Boston.—We have always decided, that if A bets that his horse will beat B's and he only makes a dead-heat of it, that A loses.

U. S. HOTEL, Manayunk, Philadelphia.—A having failed to hit more pennies than B, as he wagered he would do, and only tied, loses the bet.

AWAY FROM HOME.—1. Sullivan and Secor fought on Staten Island, N. Y. H., Jan. 24, 1842, the number of rounds being 67. 2. Chris Lilly beat Tom McCoy in 120 rounds, Sept. 13, 1842.

OLD SPLITWOOD, Watseka, Ill.—1. Have the pony shod with thin and perfectly flat plates. 2. Give oats, corn and hay only; no grass.

RENO, Philadelphia.—We thank you for the memento, but its publication at this time might be the means of awakening unpleasant associations.

FISTIANA.—Yankee Sullivan beat Hammer Lane in England, and Vince Hammond, Tom Secor, Prof. Bell and Bob Caunt in this country, where he was beaten by Tom Hyer and John Morrisey.

ALBANY.—The Hudson river is widest where it expands and forms Tappan bay, extending from Tellers' Point to Piermont, its width there being from three to four miles.

D. N. B., Boston.—Look in the sporting department. 2. It is a disease of the kidneys. 3. The subscription expires with No. 8, vol. 21.

O. GOODWELL, Decatur, Ill.—We have no record of the actual height of either party named. They are always underrated in public amusements.

WM. BLACK, Painted Post.—The hospital that formerly occupied the premises in Broadway opposite Pearl street, was torn down some years ago, and stores now occupy the site.

J. MCC., Brooklyn.—A, having won two games of the rubber, is out, and has nothing further to do with the game. B and C must play the third game to decide who pays.

M. N. Y.—There is no school in this city where pupils are fitted for the stage, but at times actors or actresses take a few pupils for that purpose.

DAVID.—We do not know Carleton's address. McAtee is in Troy. Spencer Meade is the name of the Philadelphia bowler, now one of the best in the country.

W. B. L., Philadelphia, Pa.—We suppose you mean ballet dancing by classic dancing, and there is no work published on that.

E. S. Y., Portland.—The Eckfords will have no nine this season, so we are told, and the opening game for the Philadelphia Club. Yes, there will be a Washington nine.

JOE, Memphis.—1. With the bare knuckles, of course. 2. Obtain it at the news-stand.

ANDOVER.—Seventeen horses were the greatest recorded number ever cleared by George M. Kelley.

E. C. O., Chicago, Ill.—The mother of Miss Clara Louise Kellogg is living.

HARRY, Mobile.—We do not make public the ages of professional ladies.

THEATRE GOER, Baltimore, Md.—She was born in New York city in 1835, and made her first appearance since she was a little child.

J. H. K.—Charles Mathews acted his original character of Dazzle in "London Assurance" at Wallack's in May, 1872.

J. C. G., Philadelphia, Pa.—The Hanlon Brothers are performing in Paris, France.

C. A. F.—Thanks for items. Such will always be used, if we have not later intelligence.

C. H., Cairo, Ill.—We cannot advise you what kind of a uniform to use for a base-ball club, as almost all styles and colors are in vogue.

DICK, Chicago.—A wins the bet, as his three kings beat three diamonds. A flush of only three cards is of no value whatever.

O. W. S., Chicago.—We know nothing of the case mentioned. When and where did the fight occur?

READER, Allentown, Pa.—At cribbage, three 3's, a 7 and a 2 count 12; 6 by fifteens and 6 for pair-royal.

A OLD WHEELMAN.—P loses, as E weighed over 191 lbs., and he bet that he did not weigh as much.

READER, St. Louis.—There is no work published treating exclusively on faro.

C. L. D.—We decline to answer questions concerning the private affairs of professional people.

OLD SUBSCRIBER.—Prof. Schmidt's pupils have returned to England.

A MUTUAL ADMIRER.—The team you name is probably the strongest they could present. O'Rourke is a fine player.

EROSSTON, Indianapolis, Ind.—Lotta is alive, and at present in Europe.

P. B.—The advertisement, displayed in a space of 15 lines, will cost $3.30 for each insertion.

F. D., Sherbrook.—Refer the case more definitely; we see nothing in it to be rewarded.

JOHN SCULLY, bricklayer, or anyone knowing his whereabouts, is referred to Lawrence Scully's advertisement.

B. H., Wilmington, Del.—M loses the bet, for Flora Temple was not so bought.

EMPIRE, Syracuse.—Stokes has been tried twice; on the first occasion the jury disagreed, and on the second he was convicted.

C. S.—Such is a matter of opinion on which is the best English sporting paper. Your second inquiry we cannot understand.

A. B., Danbury, Conn.—We know nothing of the responsibility of the party referred to.

J. F. S., Philadelphia, Pa.—Some advertisers can send you a copy of "Adrienne, the Actress," but "Elizabeth" is not published.

LEON D'ANGA.—Mr. Readman is in this city, and can be addressed in care of this office. You are believed, returned to Europe.

F. E. M., Columbus, O.—4. We have no opening of the kind. 2. If you are doing well where you are, you had better stay there.

F. P., Wilmington, Del.—Address S. C. Keeler, in care of the CLIPPER.

E. S. G., Nashville, Tenn.—If the song is published, any musicdealer could order it for you.

W. A. B., Worcester, Mass.—A letter addressed in care of the CLIPPER will reach him.

B. G. W., East Providence.—You are justly entitled to the forfeit-money, but you lose the stake-money in the fight, viz., $15.

R. J., Indianapolis, Ind.—R. M. De Witt, No. 33 Rose street, New York.

ARTICLE 47.—Mr. Louis James acted Capt. Lynde in "Divorce" at the old Fifth Avenue Theatre.

M. P., Zanesville, O.—We cannot give you the author of the lines quoted. 2. Pronounced as if spelled Ger-te.

WM. W., Chicago, Ill.—We will endeavor to ascertain the whereabouts of the party named. Watch answers to correspondents.

H. M., Ithaca, N. Y.—Send the letter in care of the CLIPPER and it will reach him.

J. J. W., Boston, Mass.—It is commonly pronounced as if spelled John-auch schneck, with the accent on the last syllable.

J. H., St. Louis.—See our annual record of circus companies, which will be published in April.

J. H. R. AND J. S., Baltimore, Md.—We never answer questions by mail. The play named is being performed by several persons.

NANINE, Chicago.—We could not title it, as we have several on hand awaiting their turn.

W. H. PHILLIPS.—Did we not make reply at the time? We will look it up, if it has not been answered by mail.

READER.—A fair was advertised, but it was not a success. It was held at Brooklyn Hall in February.

A CONSTANT READER.—We should say not, though it may be possible.

H. J. W., Chicago, Ill.—You can get them in Chicago just as easily as in New York. Inquire at a glass warehouse.

X. O. P., Boston, Mass.—You can address him at 616 Broadway, N. Y.

VIVIAN, Trenton, N. J.—We know nothing of him, further than that he advertises.

JOHN L. SORSORES, Md.—No championship can be held by a club that refuses to accept all challenges.

C. S. C., Tecumseh, Mich.—Any player can knock, if he thinks proper, before the widow is turned.

W. H., Farrington, Fla.—When a player assists his partner at euchre, the latter cannot play it alone.

IGNORANT.—Flour and starch, with a small proportion of glue boiled with water, make an excellent paste for posting bills.

C. B. C.—If A builds "trays," B cannot put a four on them and call it ten.

JOHN SMITH, Syracuse.—The referee's decision is final in all such cases.

OLD SUBSCRIBER, Worcester, Mass.—It will remove it, but not permanently.

F. W., Suffield.—The Dunderberg was sold to the French government and its name changed to Rochambeau.

READER, Pittsburgh.—W. B. Noble, the father of Budd, drove Goldsmith Maid when she made her record of 2:16¼.

F., Philadelphia, Pa.—He has not sent for his letters.

D. R.—Jim Mace beat Bob Travers, Feb. 22d, 1869.

C. H. P., Boston, Mass.—Received. Thank you.

J. MURTHA.—We have more than we can use.

E. R., Pittsburgh.—All three pay equally.

FRANK.—Gen. Sheridan is not married.

C. F. K.—We cannot find room for it.

IT IS MUCH EASIER to write novels than to be a newspaper reporter. This has just been discovered by Mr. Edmund Yates. In his own country this gentleman became quite popular as a writer of fiction, and his works were read with interest in this part of the world as well. Being ambitious, upon his arrival in New York he gave up writing novels, and began a series of lectures; but as a lecturer he made but feeble headway. Next he tried reporting for a New York daily; but this he found to be the most difficult task he had ever undertaken, and his failure was decided. It is probable that Mr. Yates will now confine his efforts to novel-writing, and leave reporting to those gentlemen who understand it.

ONE DAY LAST WEEK we came within an ace of having another tenant added to the list of inmates of Murderers' Row in the city prison, a rumor gaining currency that a terrible homicide had taken place in the upper part of the city. Fortunately, for the ends of justice, this murder turned out to be a suicide. Now if every murder could be converted into a suicide, what a saving it would be of dollars and cents, to say nothing of bribery, perjury, and mutilation of alleged consciences. By this means trials, convictions, stays, appeals, executions and respites might be all done away with.

JUDGING from the condition of our citizen soldiery on their return from Washington, after the inauguration, the reception of our braves in that city was the coldest they had ever experienced. All hands were so benumbed that they were unable to have arms.

"OVER THE" came very near being made a bulkhead of the other day, when, in his sportive playfulness, he called a footman on a gilded carriage a pedestrian.

THE FRENCH DRAMA.

We are somewhat surprised at the extreme gratitude of foreign dramatists towards those who have helped make them. It is a well-known fact that in this city French dramas will draw exceedingly well. When they are produced here, the passages that are acceptable to a Parisian audience are cut, as not suitable to American tastes. Still, with the cutting and alteration of text, the morals is the same, and it does seem that some audiences prefer these pernicious foreign dramas to those of home talent and pure in sentiment. They certainly do not elevate the profession, nor are the lessons they teach beneficial. The plots are generally founded upon one theme, the crime of adultery. It is like teaching a child to steal, and then lecturing it upon its fault. Foreign dramatists have found here a rich field for their labors; they have met encouragement from managers, and some of our stars have even visited Europe to have plays written for them, while they let home talent go begging. Victorien Sardou, the French playwright, is a man who has been extensively patronized by Americans. In return for their kindness he exhibits his gratitude by writing a drama called "Uncle Sam." This drama purports to show the manners and customs of the American people, and in it, we are told, the author has far surpassed himself in his accustomed nastiness and indecency. He must have a strange conception of the character of the American people when he offers a most scurrilous and contemptible insult to its women. Let the women of America remember Victorien Sardou!—the man who would thus insult them they should never countenance. The play itself was too obscene to please even the Parisian taste, and the French government compelled certain objectionable passages to be cut, and, as a contemporary remarks, "thereby destroyed what little interest the play possessed." If, according to Victorien Sardou, "the honor of our women is ticketed with its price," let American women who respect themselves resolve to never again enter a theatre in which a play of Sardou's is being represented. Cannot our managers give us plays that possess a moral, healthy tendency? Does the production of these French plays benefit society? Does it raise the actor's art in the estimation of the theatre-going people? If the truth were spoken, no actor who loves his profession would consent to take a part in such plays as Sardou's. But his art is his bread-and-butter, and he must do as he is told. Give us plays that are worth seeing, and from which benefit can be derived—not those empty nothings which hurt the stage and lower the profession. As a people, we are ever ready to recognize true genius and talent, no matter whence they come. Art is as much appreciated here as it is in the old world, and the true artist is sure of a hearty welcome. The playwright who uses his talents to a good purpose should be patronized and encouraged, as is his due. We ought not, as a people, favor the efforts of those who work to demoralize society, and then, for the encouragement they have received, turn round and offer us an unprovoked insult.

THE TROUBLES with the Modoc Indians are not entirely over yet. Some of the red men seem disposed to behave themselves, and accept the terms proposed; others show themselves to be as ugly in disposition as they are in looks, and that is needless. We fear that considerable Indianuity will yet be required in working out this "Indian problem."

HOW IT WORKS.—It is stated in the papers, and therefore must be true, that a convict lately died in a Georgia jail who had been three times sentenced to death for murder, the sentence being commuted to imprisonment each time. If Gov. Dix should veto the bill, it could go hard against Foster.

THERE IS A GOOD DEAL of excitement here owing to the action of Gov. Dix in respiting Foster. Many persons seem inclined to think that, because the operation of the law has been suspended, for the time being, Foster will not be suspended.

JUST BECAUSE a man deals in watches, does it follow that he is of Celtic origin?

NEWS OF THE WEEK BOILED DOWN.

☞ The Forty-second Congress closed on the 3d inst. its labors, the most important of which may be thus summed up: 1. Passed the Deficiency bill and the Enforcement bill; 2. ratified the Treaty of Washington and confirmed the President's appointments under it; 3, passed the Amnesty bill; 4, repealed the duties on tea and coffee, and reduced most of the other customs duties one per cent.; 5, reapportioning the House of Representatives and increasing their number to 293; 6, voting a general bounty of $100 to soldiers enlisted before President Lincoln's proclamation; 7, providing for the election of members of Congress, in all cases, by a plurality; 8, the offices of Assessor and Assistant Assessor of Revenue; 9, directing the Secretary of Treasury to withhold the remittees of the Pacific railroads; 10, repealed the franking privilege; 11, prohibiting the building of railroads through the line of war, of wood and iron, and to carry heavy guns; and 12, increasing as follows the pay of government officers: President, $50,000; vice-president, $10,000; chief-justice supreme court, $10,500; justices supreme court, each, $10,000; cabinet officers, $10,000; assistant secretaries of State, Treasury and Interior, $6,000; speaker of House (after present Congress), $10,000; Senators, Representatives and delegates (including present Congress), $7,500.

☞ On Friday, the 7th inst. George Hall, aged 18, shot dead Amelia Shockley, aged fourteen, while on her way home from school in consequence of another young girl who was courting Hall. A telegram of the 8th inst. reports a suicide as the sequel: "A freight-train bound south, to-night, ran over and killed a man supposed to be the murderer of the girl Amelia Shockley, who was shot yesterday afternoon near Salisbury. The train was going at the rate of twenty miles an hour. The man ran out and threw himself on the track."

☞ Two attempts to rob the Coan Exchange Bank, Philadelphia, was discovered at daylight last Sunday by the private watchman, who noticed three suspicious persons in the doorway. Upon his approach they ran, but being pursued and fired upon, two of them were captured. The burglars, who had with them a complete assortment of burglars' implements, gave their names as Henry and Allen Williams, and were committed for trial in default of $5,000 bail each.

— Two more Pan convicts, among whom was James Cusick, the man-eater, made a daring attempt to escape from Blackwell's Island, by jumping into a penitentiary-boat that was passing too close to the shore, and by threatening the coxswain and a fireman at the tiller, compelled them to row them to the spot where the keeper's rifle the boat was capsized, and all ten had a narrow escape from drowning.

— A woman she had bowed to a former beau, a man named Benoit, who was 38 and recently married a girl of 18, strangled his wife after the twain had returned from easily mass. Benoit then went back to church and coolly recounted what he had done. He was arrested in Montreal, Province of Quebec, Canada, where this occurred, and Benoit narrowly escaped lynching.

☞ In Newark street, near Grove, Hoboken, on the 4th inst., ex-Alderman Thomas, president of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, while he held on to the bicycle, causing consternation and a stampede. The only arrests were the two handlers, who were in the ring with birds in their hands preparatory to a battle.

— Trial of murderer of James Graham, at Little Neck, L. I., was on Saturday last found dead among the hay in J. H. Anderson's barn at Newtown Village. He had $77.87 in his pockets. He never boasted of his crime before us that not only is there in this country a rib of James V, of Scotland, but also that it has been here ever since 1774. Its exact whereabouts is advertised for.

— A recent meeting of the National Temperance Society, Dr. Willard Parker, of New York, would exclude drink bad liquor, than good. He probably knows how it is both ways.

— A Frenchman, M. Lefevre, won $118,000 betting on horse-racing in England last season. He had "caught the fever" at his christening.

— Dayton, O., has a fresh young fellow, aged 104, who is on the lookout for something new to do, and would not object to taking lessons in the art of dying young.

— Mr. Lay made a balloon ascension from San Francisco last Sunday. When last heard from, the balloon, with perhaps Mr. Lay, was passing over San Jose, and toward Gilroy.

— Despite the almost unprecedented cold which prevailed there, there was terrifically hot in Quebec on the 8th ult. The supporters of Pelletier fought Hot in Quebec on the 8th ult. The supporters of Pelletier fought which they killed Joseph Minville, one of the Huot partisans. Liking not the looks of a bleeding body lying there, they proceeded to bury it in a cellar. Such is Canadian politics.

— A Wisconsin woman has needlessly made things lively. Thinking she was dying, she confessed to her callow husband that she had loved a hirsute neighbor too well. Husband was beside himself with grief, and the neighbor resigns all respect for his promised to. But the woman didn't die, confound it! and now flirtsuite death from Callow.

— Judge Daly, of the Court of Common Pleas, in effect decided on Tuesday that a man who can't afford it is bounden to support his mother-in-law. A short time ago, Judge Larremore, of the same court, held the reverse opinion, on the ground that a man cannot serve two masters.

— The Old Guard of the East, N. Y. M., that participated in the inaugural ceremonies, is the only military organization which has ever entered the White House bearing arms. Arms being stacked in the East Room, the Guard were on the 5th inst. severally presented to the president.

— Hoe-anna! but she has got enough stock-in for many a rainy day. A young lady, in Oconto, Wisconsin, has provided herself with two hundred pairs of what, but for the garters accompanying, might be called socks.

— As matter of muscular economy, the heavy chief of the Menominee Indians still was nourishing without work for a living. His name is Ah-con-o-mee, and he has for theft been sent to the Wisconsin penitentiary for three years.

— Boston has had a sensation of a near having a sensation on the 2d inst. Deserted by her lover, a young girl attempted to "arsenic" herself out of existence. Much to the disgust of the family undertaker, she had taken an overdose, which acted as an emetic.

THE TURF.

RACING AND TROTTING NOTES.

A peculiar hoof disease among horses, said to result from the jolting of the railroad tracks, is now prevalent in this city.....Mr. S. G. Goodson's (of Cross Keys, Tennessee,) chestnut filly Vain Glory, three years old, by imp. Australian out of Vanity, by Vandal, died recently very suddenly. She was of the same pedigree as Dolly Carter, the dam of Joe Daniels, and had taken more premiums than any other filly of her age in Tennessee.....Mr. John Monohan, of Springfield, Ohio, has sold his three-year-old, by Mambrino Patchen out of a thoroughbred mare for $2,500.....Mr. Lee Paul will train the racing stable of Mr. T. G. McGibben, Cynthiana, Ky., this season—that gentleman having been an extensive purchaser at Mr. Alexander's annual sale at Woodburn, last June. The bay colt Lampi, four years old, by Lightning out of Sallie, and owned by Mr. Eagle, who won the Produce Stakes at the Lexington Fall Meeting and the Battle House Stakes at Nashville, last season, will also be trained by Lee Paul.....The genial "Squire of McGrathiana," H. P. McGrath, of Kentucky, recently lost a chestnut colt foal by Mambrino Patchen out of Colleen Bawn, by Endorser. Tom Bowling, the pride of his stable and hope of Kentucky, has wintered well, and grown considerably. This colt won the Flash Stakes at Saratoga, and the Theseplan and August Stakes for two-year-olds at Monmouth Park, last season, and will be a dangerous rival in the great three-year-old stakes the coming season.....Major B. G. Thomas, of Lexington, offers Ramadan, fourteen years, by War Dance, out of Regina; Rival, 6 years old, by imp. Australian, out of Mary Irvine (dam of James A. Conolly's and Bland Tom's dam); and Ulverston, 12 years old, by Lexington, out of Utilla, by imp. Margrave, for sale.....The Lowell Horse and Agricultural Association, of Lowell, Mass., will hold their second annual spring meeting on June 24th and three following days, when $3,000 will be awarded in premiums.....The Abbey Track, St. Louis, will be open next season, under the superintendence of Mr. J. Hillspatch. A spring training meeting will be held in May next.....The celebrated racehorse Enquirer, by Leamington, is standing this season at the stud for the low fee of $100 the season.....The Point Breeze Park Association, Philadelphia, have fixed on Sept. 9th, 10th and 11th for their fall meeting.....John Lovett this spring is training Lulu Gazelle, Young Bruno, George and Stonewall Jackson; he has got a stable of fast ones.....The four celebrated mares belonging to Mr. Robert Bonner, Princess, Flatbush Maid, Lady Palmer and Lady Sanford, are at Grange Farm, having all been bred to Edward Everett, and it is thought all are in foal to him. The produce of such a quartet of mares ought to be flyers.....Nannie Douglas, whose death we noted last week, was heavy in foal to Lynchburg, and was expected to foal on the 19th inst. Three other mares, all in foal to Lynchburg, also slipped their foals, the cause being attributed to the weakening of their constitutions by attacks of the epizootic disease.....Budd Doble, under date of Feb. 21st, writes that the weather in California is very rainy, and nothing has been done in reference to the proposed matches between Occident and Rosalind.....Prentice Mateer will train this season the horses Wm. H. Allen, Mercer, Mary Whitney, Capt. Wm. H. Allen and St. Elmo.....Mr. James A. Grinstead, of Lexington, Ky., has purchased a yearling full brother to London or Col. Breckenridge; he is a gray and very handsome.....Mr. R. W. Cameron (who imported Leamington into this country) has sold Bonnie Dundee, by Balrownie, dam imp. Sacrifice filly by Melbourne, to a gentleman in Onondaga Co., N. Y.; he also sold the young mare Invergary, by Leamington out of Nellie Graves, to an eastern gentleman, who will breed her to Col. Rupell's trotting stallion Pearnaught.....The famous Tennessee trotting stallion John Chambers, by Canadian Lion, was purchased last week by Mr. Sam. Bryant, of Louisville, Ky., for $3,500.

RACING IN CALIFORNIA.—The anniversary of Washington's Birthday in San Francisco was celebrated by the long-expected running race for a purse of $500, mile heats, best three in five, at Agricultural Park, which was largely attended. This race had been repeatedly postponed on account of the wet weather, and the heavy state of the track, but on the day in question the weather was fine, and the course in good order for running. The entries were George Treat's ch. h. Thad Stevens, ridden by C. Ross; W. Hall's b. m. Nettie Brown, ridden by C. Moody; A. Cardinell's ch. g. Tommy Chandler, piloted by Mowry; W. Pierce's b. m. Kate Gift, ridden by Pierce, and R. T. Leet's b. m. Lizzie Martin, ridden by Joyce. Thad Stevens carried 126 lb., and the others 95 lb. each. The judges were Messrs. H. R. Corey, and T. J. Edmondson, of San Francisco, and W. C. Wilson, of San Jose. Messrs. Budd Doble, Sargeant and Livermore officiated as timers. The betting was heavy, Thad Stevens, from his well-known staying qualities, being backed freely against the field—the final winner, Nettie Brown, selling for fourth choice in the pools. The first and second heats were won by Nettie Brown, the favorite not trying to win, but laying back in hopes the others would run themselves out, and before the third heat was the favorite at $250 against $150 for the field. The struggle in the deciding heat lay solely between Nettie Brown and Thad Stevens; the former, after a tremendous struggle, winning the heat and race by a neck in 1:47, the fastest third heat ever recorded on this track. Time, 1:49; 1:48½; 1:47. Immediately after the above race was decided the winner and Thad Stevens were matched to run a race of mile heats, best three in five, for $1,000 a side, carrying the same weights and over the same course as the above race. It was to have come off on Saturday, the 8th inst., and was creating considerable interest in racing circles in San Francisco.

STUD NEWS.—At Woodburn Stud Farm, Ky., Mr. Alexander's Eagless (the dam of Mary Clark), by Glencoe, dropped a gray filly by Planet on the 26th ult.....At the Nursery Stud Farm, L. I., Mr. A. Belmont's imported Nonpareil, by Kingston, dropped a bay filly by Kentucky on the 27th ult., and will be bred to Kingfisher.....At Santee, S. C., Mr. Charles E. Sims' Fanny Fisher (the dam of Frank Hampton), by Charley Ball, dropped a chestnut colt by Patriot on the 16th ult.....Mr. Patrick Gilchard's imported Highland Lassie, by Bair Athol, dropped a bay filly by Gladiator last week. The filly died in foaling, and the mare will be bred to imp. Bellrose.....At Eminence, Ky., Mr. S. T. Drane's Sandie, by John Aiken, dropped a chestnut filly to Endorser on the 28th ult.....Mr. Dawson's bay mare Albacra, by Jeff Davis out of Ninette left Fordham for Chestnut Hill last week to be bred to Leamington.

DEATH OF LADY CIFFIE.—Capt. William Cottrill, of Mobile, Ala., has sustained a severe loss in the death of his valuable brood-mare Lady Ciffie. She died on Feb. 26th, in the act of foaling to Daniel Boone. The foal died also. Lady Ciffie was a chestnut, foaled in 1858, by imp. Albion out of Yndora by imp. Priam; she was bred by Mr. Wm. Hendree, of Tennessee. She was a brilliant performer on the turf at all distances, and her death is a great loss to the Magnolia stud, following so close on that of Miss Bacon, whose death we noted last week.

THE EAST SAGINAW, Mich., Driving Park Association holds a business meeting on the 24th, 25th, 26th and 27th of June, to make arrangements for a grand tournament in the fall. They will offer premiums aggregating $15,000, and expect to have some of the best trotting stock in the country on exhibition.

COCKING.

MAIN BETWEEN SYRACUSE AND CORTLAND vs. FULTON AND OSWEGO.

A main of cocks between represented fanciers of the above places was fought at a pit some fourteen miles from Syracuse, on Wednesday, the 5th inst. The present was to show eleven birds on each side and fight all that fell in, at weights ranging from 5lb. 2oz. to 4lb., for $40 each battle and $300 the main. On weighing, five pairs fell in, and the sport commenced.

First Fight.—Syracuse pitted a 5lb. 2oz. blue red against a Fulton dark red 6oz. lighter in weight. The former was made a hot favorite in consequence of the great advantage he had in the weights, but the Fulton champion was a hummer, and, keeping constantly at work, won the fight in 23min. A foul was claimed by Syracuse, but not allowed.

2. The lightest weights, two four-pounders, came next; a dark red for Fulton and a blue for Syracuse. The former had the call in the betting, and the fight for the first few buckles was a lively one. Finally the Syracuse bird was "pounded" and taken, and "pounded" again and not taken. A foul was claimed by Syracuse, but not allowed by the referee, and considerable wrangling followed. Finally all parties agreed to leave the matter to the decision of the Emperor of the New York Cocking Court, the decision to affect the battle-money also. It is that the Fulton bird was entitled to the fight, and the referee decided properly.

3. Syracuse showed a duckwing, 5lb. 1oz., and Fulton a blue red 5lb. 1oz. This was a clipping fight, the birds being breasted three times in 10 minutes. The duckwing got a broken wing, but fighting on gallantly, the Fulton bird turned tail and became a runaway. Time, 15 min.

4. Syracuse pitted a brassback, 5lb. 7oz. against a Fulton dark red an ounce lighter. The latter was made a hot favorite, his party piling on the money as if the fight was over. He was a proved good one and won cleverly in 8 min. This decided the main for Fulton.

5. Fulton produced a dark red against a Syracuse light muff, weights 5lb. 4oz. each. It was a capital fight while it lasted, which was 5 min., at the expiration of which the dark red was laidout, and Syracuse won. Summary:

Battle.	Syracuse.	Fulton.	Weights. Sy. oz.	Fu. oz.	Won by
1	Blue red	Dark red	5.03	5.10	Fulton.
2	Blue	Brown red	4.05	4.04	Fulton.
3	Duckwing	Blue red	5.01	5.02	Syracuse.
4	Brassback	Dark red	5.07	5.06	Fulton.
5	Light muff	Dark red	5.04	5.04	Syracuse.

Time, 4 hours 29 minutes.

LONG ISLAND VS. WESTCHESTER COUNTY —Westchester Victorious.

A main between Westchester County and Long Island chanticleers, the former represented by James W. Delano and the latter by Stephen Corian, was fought on Saturday afternoon, the 8th inst., at a well-known pit in Westchester. The articles of agreement specified that each party should show seventeen cocks and fight all that fell in, with the weight of each cock to be given in the spurs according to New York rules, at weights ranging from 4 lb. 6oz. to 5lb. 1oz., for $50 each battle, and $600 the odd fight deciding the main. After the process of weighing, which occupied two hours, was over, it was found that fifteen cocks were matched, and then betting commenced with sport. Long Island being the favorite at $100 to $80 on the main, $50 to $40 on each individual battle. Stephen Marshal, of Brooklyn, handled the Long Island fowls, and James McKee held the Westchester County birds. The latter were raised at Yonkers and Peekskill, while the former were a mixed lot of various strains. They were good game birds, but inferior in condition to the Westchester chanticleers.

The first and second battles were won by Long Island, and that party lasted in a big lot of greenbacks, which, however, they failed to retain long, as the Westchester division won the third, fourth and fifth battles. Long Island equalized matters by winning the sixth and seventh fights, and then Westchester made the account square by winning the eighth, each party having scored four battles. Fortune favored Long Island in the ninth and tenth combats, and Westchester the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth, making the score of the latter stand seven to Long Island's six. In the fourteenth battle both sides pitted their best champions, Long Island sending in one of the celebrated Madcap strain and Westchester a Red Horse, one of the famous southern strains so noted for fast fighting and dead game. It was a capital battle, the Madcap proving victorious after a fight of 15 minutes. Again did the contest stand even, and the next fight was final and decisive. Two grand-looking birds were pitted, and the Long Islander was made the favorite at the odds of $30 to $25. For 17 minutes it was a rattling battle, neither having the advantage up to that time, but finally the Westchester bird blinded his opponent and won the main and money. The final score was Westchester county, 8; Long Island, 7.

AQUATICS.

ARIEL ROWING CLUB.—The Ariel Rowing Club, of Baltimore, Md., held its annual meeting on March 3d, and after the general business had been transacted the following list of officers: George May Williams, president; and T. Keating Stuart, secretary and treasurer; Wm. Gilmor, captain. Governors—W. S. Wilson, Hoffman Gilmor, Wm. Gilmor, G. M. Williams and Charles Wyman.

JIMMY HAMILL, the ex-champion sculler, now lowers the scales at about 230 pounds.; and yet he "runs wid de masheen" in his native city. His brother Johnny is assistant chief-engineer of the Pittsburgh fire department, and right bower to "chief Billy White, otherwise known as "the infant."

MIKE J. DONNETT, a Smoky City sport, and brother of Tony, is on a brief visit to the metropolis, his object being merely to "look around and see the sights."

THE NEGOTIATIONS for a match between Joe Sadler and Bob Bagnall seemed likely, upon the date of our latest foreign advices, to end satisfactorily, Bagnall having partly signified his willingness to row on the Thames.

THE ANNUAL RACE between the Oxford and Cambridge University eights is fixed for the afternoon of Saturday, March 29th.

LAURA ALBERTA,
THE GREATEST ARTISTE OF THE AGE,
SUPPORTED BY
G. W. HARRISON,
IN CHAS. R. NEWTON'S SENSATIONAL DRAMA,
OUT AT SEA.
INTRODUCING HER GREAT SPECIALITIES.
WOOD'S MUSEUM.—The drama of "Out at Sea," which has been having a very successful run this week, is remarkably attractive play, judging by the immense audiences nightly in attendance. It is full of exciting incident and startling effect, and the principal character, a poor sea rover, with musical, vocal and dance accompaniments, is well sustained by Miss Laura Alberta.—Phila. Inquirer.
The dramatic attraction at Colonel Wood's popular place of amusement this week is a new sensational drama, written by Charles E. Newton, and called "Out at Sea." Rick, a type of the protean stamp, is played, with the usual accompaniments of banjo solos, songs and dances, by Laura Alberta, who delights the audience with an overflowing measure of animal spirits.—Phila. Age.
Laura Alberta, the greatest child-actress of the day, will appear for the last time at the above theatre this evening, supported by the popular comedian, Mr. G. W. Harrison. The drama, "Out at Sea," gives Laura Alberta full scope to display her versatility. She is a beautiful dancer, and sings like a bird.—Albany Argus.

GENTLEMEN.—In answer to your note, through your attorney, requesting myself and brother to discontinue the use of the words

"At the close of the third act the Girards gave an exhibition of their rightly-called "Eccentric Folly," which was entirely different from anything ever before seen on that stage. NOTICE
TO THE PROFESSION.
At a social meeting of the undersigned Elks, held at the Metropolitan Theatre, Washington, D. C., Thursday evening, March 6th, it was resolved that a vote of thanks be tendered MR. J. J. LUTTS, proprietor of the European Hotel, Baltimore, Md., for remitting attention and kindness to our deceased brother, TONEY HARVEY, who fell a victim to the loathsome scourge, small-pox, in the above hotel, Wednesday morning, March 5th. MR. LUTTS, like the whole-souled man that he is, refused to have him moved out of the hotel, thereby suffering heavy pecuniary loss. Professionals visiting Baltimore are requested to bear the above in mind and patronize
J. J. LUTTS,
a genial, jovial gentleman, and the Showman's Friend.
Our sincere and heartfelt sympathies are extended to the bereaved widow and family of the deceased.

SPECIAL CARD.
At a regular stated meeting of THE ACTORS' ORDER OF FRIENDSHIP, held at their hall, No. 728 North 8th street, in the city of Philadelphia, Pa., on Thursday, January 3d, 1873, the death of EDWIN FORREST was announced, accompanied with feeling and appropriate remarks; whereupon, on motion, duly seconded and carried, the President appointed a committee of three for the purpose of drafting resolutions expressive of the great regret with which the order received the sad intelligence, and the loss sustained by the profession at large, the chair appointed the following Brothers for that purpose: Thomas McKeon, Alexander Fisher and William H. Bailey. At the subsequent stated meeting, held on Thursday, February 6th, 1873, the above-named committee submitted the following preamble and resolutions, which, after being read, were, on motion, unanimously adopted:
Whereas, It has pleased the Almighty Ruler of the Universe to call from this stage of life unto an eternal rest EDWIN FORREST, America's greatest tragedian, who, after a long and brilliant career, yielded to "the fell sergeant, Death," on the 12th of December, 1872, in the 67th year of his age; and
Whereas, The late EDWIN FORREST entered the dramatic profession in this, the city of his nativity, at an early age, and by his brilliant histrionic genius, persistent study and identification, became and continued its bright and leading ornament until his final and involuntary withdrawal therefrom. Therefore Resolved, That by and through the death of the late EDWIN FORREST the dramatic profession has suffered an irreparable loss, a space has been made vacant which none can fill, his mantle there is no one to wear. The public at large has lost one of its most faithful and devoted servants, and art and literature one of their most steadfast and zealous patrons and expounders.
Resolved, That by the legacy of $2,000 devised to THE ACTORS' ORDER OF FRIENDSHIP by the late EDWIN FORREST he has proved the sincerity of the interest and desire he always professed in and for the welfare and prosperity of that Association and its members, and the cause they espouse.
Resolved, That as a tribute of our respect to the memory of the late EDWIN FORREST, and also as an acknowledgment of our gratitude for his munificent legacy to the profession at large, and his gift to ourselves, these resolutions be engrossed and framed, entered in full upon the minutes of the proceedings of the Order, and that a copy of the same be forwarded to the New York Clipper for publication.

AFTER THE SHOW.

BY CHARLES H. DAY.

A last melodious burst of music, a farewell round of applause, and a hurried rush for the door, indicate the termination of the circus performance; while the voices of the young men announcing the "grand concert to take place in the pavilion" are heard above the din and clatter created by the workingmen who are removing the seats on one side, leaving the remainder to be occupied by the patrons of the concert. Who can resist the eloquence of the youth who informs everyone that "the ladies are invited to remain free of charge," and requests all to hear this grand performance, vocal, instrumental and terpsichorean, for the insignificant sum of twenty five cents? The circus does not come every day, and the good people have not yet had a surfeit of amusement, and despite the lateness of the hour linger to listen to another song, and to laugh at the eccentricities of the Ethiopian comedians.

In the dressing-rooms the performers are doffing the motley and the tights and spangles, for the dress of the civilian; the minstrels are "blacking up" with the burnt cork, and the manager and treasurer are using the head of the bass-drum as a table for the purpose of "counting the house." The clown, the very one that rolled all over the ring and made you roar again and again in hearty laughter, is holding on his knee a cunning little baby, all curls and dimples and smiles, the pet of the non-athletic actors, while the mother is to trill a song in the concert.

Business has been excellent, and manager and treasurer are in the best of humor. Besides, the entertainment has passed off in the most satisfactory manner. The doorkeeper has his usual experience to relate of the species "deadhead"—the individual who desireth to see the show without paying therefor, and hath excuses various and show cause why he should not interview the gentleman in the ticket-wagon. A persistent and perseveringly individual is ye deadhead; and Marshall P. Wild, who was special ticket-agent for Charles Dickens during his tour in America, and who since then has made it his duty to inform the public that "Harry Bloodgood has got to come," avows that one evening, while standing at the door in the interest of the Boston Theatre Company, in a down-east town, there presented himself at the entrance, with the talismanic password of "Press," a dirty-looking individual of

THE RING.

AN UNDECIDED BATTLE

BETWEEN

HARRY HICKEN AND BRYAN CAMPBELL.

FOUGHT IN WEST VIRGINIA MARCH 4TH.

Twenty-four Rounds in 1 Hour 5 Minutes.

THE FIGHT ENDED BY A ROW.

Collier's Station, West Virginia, has again been the scene of an affair which reflects disgrace upon the prize ring. On Tuesday, 4th inst., Harry Hicken, of Philadelphia, and Bryan Campbell, of Wheeling, Pa., met there to contend for two thousand dollars, but after fighting twenty-four rounds in sixty-four minutes it was broken up by an assault upon Ned O'Baldwin, one of Hicken's seconds, by friends and assistants of Campbell. Below we present a full account of the fight, as far as it progressed, and an impartial statement of the fracas which prevented its being fought out.

HISTORY OF THE MEN.

HARRY HICKEN is an Englishman by birth, his native town being Wolverhampton and the date of his entree into this world April 21st, 1848, which makes him at the present time close upon twenty-five years of age. He is a younger brother of the noted Abe Hicken (who fought numerous battles in the light little isle, won the light-weight championship of America by defeating Pete Maguire, and is now champion of Australia), with whom he came to this country, arriving in New York on Oct. 21st, 1867, being at that time but a mere stripling, "only nineteen years old." Previous to leaving the land of his nativity, however, he had made his appearance as a principal in the orthodox circle, that notable event of his life taking place at Green Lane, in the Midland district, July 3d, 1867. The amount at is us was but a "fiver" a side, and his antagonist was a Birmingham lad named J. Howley, who walloped Harry in twenty-five minutes, in which length of time they contested sixteen rounds. He made his advent upon the sparring stage soon after he landed in the metropolis, and his skill with the gloves created an impression most favorable in the minds of those who saw him put up his dukes, and gave rise to a desire to see him perform with the knuckles unadorned with backskin. Accordingly, a few of the right stripe took the matter in hand, and shortly succeeded in finding a customer for the new comer in the person of George Sisler, alias "Dutchy," a Fulton Market fish-monger, half a dozen years his senior, about fifteen pounds heavier, and a couple of inches shorter than Hicken. They fought on the quiet in a room on Jackson square, on the city, Dec. 17th, 1867, a select number of prominent sports and well-known politicians paying a heavy fee to see the fun. They fought twenty-eight rounds, Hicken having the best of the hitting throughout, though he was thrown in nearly every round up to the 24th, when Sisler began to get sick of the job, and at the close of the 28th refused to scratch again, when Harry was declared the victor. Neither man was much the worse for wear at the close of the contest, and three hundred dollars had been raised, with the understanding that they were to fight a certain length of time thereafter, and of this two hundred dollars were given to Hicken and the balance to Sisler. The time consumed was one hour and fifteen minutes. In this meeting Hicken equaled the expectations of his friends, proving himself quick to perceive and avail himself of any opening that offered, possessing coolness and judgment, and being as clever in the ring as with the gloves. Over a year passed ere Hicken was again matched, he being pitted against Billy Carroll, a novice residing at Baltimore, Md., for a century a side. They met near Freedom, Pa., on the 28th of March, 1868, and after fighting three rounds, during which Harry and his seconds were hooted at and jeered by the mob, the referee, Tom Robertson, decided against Hicken on a claim of foul, it being alleged that he had attempted to gouge his opponent. The ring was then broken in and personal violence was offered Harry and his seconds, who were compelled to fly for their lives, several shots being fired after them, fortunately without effect. So flagrant was this outrage that Hicken's backer protested against giving him any money to Carroll, and finally recovered his portion of the stakes. This was the last fight in which the subject of our sketch engaged prior to that under consideration, though he was matched against Tom Oxford, of Philadelphia, and challenges have been issued on his behalf to Billy Edwards and others. For the past two or three years he has resided in the Quaker City, where the greater part of the money for his late match was found, a small portion being posted by friends and admirers in the metropolis. Hicken is a blonde, of rather slender build, standing 5 feet 7 inches in his stockings, and on the day of battle lowered the scales at 129¾ pounds. As a boxer he is one of the most skillful in the country, being very quick in action, while his deliveries are straight, sharp and wonderfully clean.

BRYAN CAMPBELL, or "Barney," as he is generally called, is of Irish extraction—a fact which it is scarcely necessary for us to mention—and is pretty well up in years, he being a native of March 14, 1842. His occupation is that of a digger for dusky diamonds, having for some years been working "down in a coal-mine" near Wilkesbarre, Pa. It was there that he first entered into a pugilistic encounter, being pitted against Nicholas Ahearn, Dave Lewis, also a miner. Both were looked upon as "rough alleys" in that section, where muscle and sinew are at a premium, and a spirit of rivalry sprang up between them, which culminated in the mauling of a match to fight in accordance with the rules of the P. R., articles being signed and a deposit posted in October, 1870. That their backers reposed the greatest confidence in their abilities was attested not more by the amount of the stakes, one thousand dollars a side, than by the heavy betting around the ring, which was pitched in Cunningham Valley, near Hazelton, Pa., on Dec. 19th, '70, about two thousand spectators being present. Neither man possessed much science, Lewis having the superior of his antagonist in this respect, while he also had the advantage of height, weight and reach, though confined to 140lbs. As soon as they confronted each other they went to work in a style which showed that they were born non-mailing for the encounter a terrific one, which they thoroughly succeeded in doing. Neither made many attempts to ward off the blows of the other, but willingly took them for the sake of more readily paying them back in similar coin. Dave held the upper hand in the earlier portion, then Campbell's star was in the ascendant, he struggling most gamely against the odds opposed to him, and for a time with fair prospect of ultimate success, such great powers of endurance did he exhibit. Thus it went, the laurel wreath first hovering over the head of one and then the other, until 92 desperately-fought rounds had been recorded. Thereafter the Welshman had everything pretty much his own way, and his success seemed assured; but, as Gus Williams says, "there's many a slib bedween de upber lib und de glibber," and so it was in this case. As they faced each other for the 97th round Dave dashed at his opponent, driving him back into his corner, when Bryan fell backwards against the ropes and upon a chair which his seconds had allowed to remain in his corner, in violation of the rules. As he fell back Lewis administered a blow on the breast, whereupon the referee, C. H. Wilson (who was unacquainted with the rules), being appealed to, decided the blow foul and decided the fight in favor of Campbell. This erroneous decision was, we believe, given in good faith, but it was a lucky escape from certain defeat on the part of Bryan, who declined to enter into another match with Lewis, though repeatedly challenged. This was Campbell's only ring encounter previous to that of last week. In personal appearance he is dark-complexioned and less in stature than Hicken, his exact height, minus his Oxford ties, being 5 feet 5¾ inches, while his usual weight was somewhere near 140lbs., and on the morning of the mill he kicked the beam at 129¾lb. scant. In public knowledge he is far inferior to Hicken, his forte being hammer-and-tongs slogging, and he has not the power of his blows and ability to endure the most severe punishment.

THE PRESENT MATCH.

As had often been the case before, this match originated in an animated discussion concerning the relative abilities of Campbell and Hicken, which took place at Wilkesbarre, Pa., during the presence in that town of Harry, who had gone there in company with Ned O'Baldwin, the "Irish Giant," for the purpose of giving a sparring exhibition, which was finally proposed and at once consented to, and on Nov. 13th last articles were drawn up, a copy of which we subjoin:—

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT entered into this 13th day of November, A. D. 1872, between Harry Hicken, of Philadelphia, and Bryan Campbell, of Wilkesbarre. The said Harry Hicken agrees to fight the said Bryan Campbell a fair stand-up fight, according to the new rules of the London Prize Ring, for the sum of $1,000 a side. The said fight to take place on the 4th day of March, 1873, in the state of West Virginia. Both parties hereby mutually agree to fight at the weight of 130 pounds, and to weigh on the morning of fighting; either party exceeding that weight forfeiting the above-mentioned stakes. And it is further agreed between the said parties, in pursuance of these articles, that the sum of $50 a side is now staked in the hands of ——, who shall be temporary stakeholder; the balance of the said stakes as follows: The second instalment of $100 to be paid over to the temporary stakeholder on the 2d day of December, 1872; the third, or $250, on the 2d day of January, 1873; the fourth, of $250, on the 2d day of February, 1873; the fifth and final, of $250, ten days previous to the day named for the fight. The men to be in the ring between the hours of seven o'clock in the forenoon and twelve o'clock, noon, on the day fixed for the fight; the man failing to appear at the time as fixed on to forfeit the stakes. The expenses of ropes and stakes to be paid by the parties to this agreement, share and share alike. Either of the said parties who fails to make good his payments, as required, will forfeit the whole amount then paid in to the stakeholder. Both parties agree to meet in New York city, ten days previous to the fight, and select a final stakeholder. And it is further agreed that in case any unavoidable circumstance should arise to prevent the fight coming off on the day appointed, then the referee, if appointed, and if not, the final stakeholder, to appoint another place and time of meeting; the stakes not to be given to either party unless fairly won by a fight. Witness our hands and seals the day and year above written. HARRY HICKEN.

In presence of— { ED. O'BALDWIN. BRYAN CAMPBELL. / JOHN WELSH.

O'Baldwin represented Hicken in making the match, and upon returning to the City of Rocks quickly found others willing to contribute to the stakes, chief among the number being Jim Colbert, who entertained a high opinion of Harry's capabilities and had repeatedly offered to match him against well-known men previously. As a long time was to elapse ere the day for the consummation of the match arrived, and the season of the year was unsuited to outdoor training, it was decided that Harry should, a couple of months or so, Bryan finally taking a house located on the corner of Raymond and Lafayette streets, Brooklyn, whence he did his training under the experienced eye of Tom Cullen, who, however, left him for some reason a couple of weeks prior to the day appointed for the fight. Barney's brother Pat then attended to his wants as well as he knew how for a few days, Butt Riley taking him in hand on Washington's birthday, and leading him with the latter portion, then Campbell's star was in the ascendant, he struggling most gamely against the odds opposed to him, and for a time with fair prospect of ultimate success, such great powers of endurance did he exhibit. Thus it went, the laurel wreath first hovering over the head of one and then the other, until 92 desperately-fought rounds had been recorded. Thereafter the Welshman had everything pretty much his own way, and his success seemed assured; but, as Gus Williams says, "dere's many a slib bedween de ub

TO APPLICANTS FOR CORRESPONDENTS' POSITIONS.—While thanking the many gentlemen who have proffered their services as correspondents, we would respectfully inform them, and all who may hereafter propose to act in that capacity, that we do not require any additional correspondents, and trust that this notice may be considered as a reply to the numerous applications we have received.

Introductory Overture.

MONDAY, March 10th, '73.

"The spring time of year is coming," says the old song, and we begin to realise it in the lengthened days, in a milder temperature, and "Our Jim" says in a swallow or two, but his swallows have all seasons for their own, and his suggestions amount to but little. The circus people, who are harbingers of the good time coming, are as busy as free and unbridled lunchers over a clam chowder; and well they may be, for the opening of spring, with its genial warmth and bright skies, indicates that the days of their idleness are over, and that, like highwaymen of old, they must soon take to "the road" again for a living. Yes, indeed, the boys are in high glee at the near approach of their season, and very soon "live lions may be seen loose in the streets," with lovely young damsels to guide them on their way. The stately elephant, whose firm tread spoils many a grasshopper, and whose ever-ready trunk can be made to carry everything before it, is even now getting ready for a grand attack on his untamed companions to give him a notoriety that will make him the alleged "cynosure of all eyes" as he cavorts along with Golightly & Co.'s Mammoth something or other, on its annual "tour of the States." And the horses, docile and well-behaved, are undergoing artistic combing and brushing, previous to being "gaily caparisoned" for the "grand pageant." We like the circus horse; we admire his gentle nature when quietly reclining in his stall, or taking his oats and things as naturally as if he had not just been looked upon, by "myriads of eyes," as the "wild horse of the prairie," or "the fiery, untamed steed," who required the united strength of twelve men to curb his wicked temper. Ah! what would become of the circus people without their horses? What would any of us do without horses? Even what a scrape the epizooty got us into. As Richard the Third wisely remarked:—"My kingdom for a horse." And the dear old clown, too? He is brushing up for the season close at hand; the circus isn't much without the clown. Some people affect to believe that anybody can be a clown in a circus. We know a man who tried it on once; he filled himself with jokes, old and new, crammed himself with comical songs, learned to whistle, and toss up bottles, and things, and was, in his own opinion, only waiting an opportunity to revolutionize the circus business with his new notions of clowning. The opportunity was afforded him; he got up his face in style; costumed himself in tights and stripes and jingling buttons, and "went on." Better for him had he never been born. The boys knew him, and guyed him from the word go. "Hello, Tompkins, what are you doing here?" "Why, there's Tompkins, the butcher—sell all your plucks, Tompkins, old boy!" And there stood that clown with the starch taken completely out of him, as we might say. He attempted to speak, but his tongue clove to the roof of his mouth, as it were. "Give us a song," says one. "Tell us about the time and his dog," suggested another. But it was no use—he remained in statu quo, and then the innocents began to shy things at him. In vain the ring master expostulated, in vain "the female equestrienne of the age" essayed to leap through imaginary balloons. Then came the deluge—calves' livers, and beeves' plucks, and chicken gizzards, and unsavory eggs rained down upon the unfortunate butcher of a clown, and more dead than alive he was carried out like a soldier slain in battle. He never played clown again. No indeed, it is not easy to be a funny circus jester. All classes and conditions of peoples are to be humored, cheerful responses must be made to the sallies of satire aimed at him by the gods of the pit. He must set the circus in a roar by some means, and if he fails in one thing, he must try another, keep moving all the time, and though sorrow may be gnawing away at his inner man, the outer must never show it. Let us, therefore, be lenient to the clown in the season about opening, and remember that his sensibilities are as keen as those of many a man who does not play clown in public. Then there's the go-ahead agent, and the bill stickers, and the newspaper manager, and goodness knows who else, for the circus and menagerie of the present day are no one-horse concerns. There's money in the traveling show—hundreds of thousands of dollars invested in it—and everything is conducted on a system of liberality, of courtesy, of geniality and good fellowship. The circus is a great power, and managers and people alike see that its course is upward and onward. The profession numbers in its ranks men and women of education and refinement, and the entertainments they present may be witnessed with interest by the young and the aged, the goodly church-goer, and the jolly toper, the sedate and worthy, the staid and immaculate; nothing to offend good taste or morals is permitted in the circus of to-day, and thus let it be always. May be we had better give up the circus and go at something else.....Some people are never satisfied. If they are not being constantly lauded to the skies by the much-abused "press and public" they become rabid and say all manner of evil things against an unappreciative people. Now some of these actors are wrong, as you'll shall understand:

USED UP.

Jones growls because the stupid public,
Who throng the house from dome to pit
Turn up their noses at his acting,
And his performance wont outwit;
He surely has some reason now
To grumble at each vile detractor,
For, having failed the taste to hit,
Most surely he's a finished actor!

.....As the Lenten season moves along, changes in theatricals become necessary, especially in this good city. Appropriate to the season as it may seem to be, "Old Heidelberg" has already ceased to be given at the Union Square; but Mark Smith, the old'un, ought to make it hum in the provinces, through which, we believe, he intends to travel. "David Garrick," which, according to the transcendent dailies, drives the fiddlers out of their orchestra seats at Wallack's, is to be supplanted at an early day by "Dundreary," owing, probably, to the pious fervor of our people, who look upon "Garrick" as a player-actor, and, therefore, that he be encouraged during Lent. "Romping In" is to give place to something another at the Grand Opera; while even "Leo and Lotos," one of the most beautiful spectacles ever presented to public notice, will abdicate in favor of Buffalo Bill and his confreres. Fresh programmes are necessary to keep the public up to time. Florence's old plays are not sufficient to draw large audiences at Booth's, so "Daddy O'Dowd," with Boucicault as the Daddy, will take the place to be early vacated by William. Up at the Museum, we have a regular succession of novelties, more, perhaps, than you ever before saw at one place in the same time; and the plays are made a total pleasure at this house than elsewhere, and you are neither chiseled nor gouged; in fact, the management shows good head work, and the house equally good Wood work.....One of our minstrel bands has pulled up stakes already, and started on its travels. We refer to the San Francisco troupe, with Birch, Backus and Wambold in the lead. There are changes in minstrelsy, too; and since it first took root in public favor, some thirty years ago, it has had its ups and downs, its seasons of prosperity, its times of adversity. Little did that first organized band of four—Frank Brower, Dick Pelham, Billy Whitlock and Dan Emmett—imagine how popular the new notion was destined to become. Introduced as an experiment by this little band, its popularity was at once assured, and it floated on the tide of public favor until bands were organized in all the principal cities, and fortunes were lost and won in the furore. The great Christy—E. P.—saw the opening the Whitlock party had made, and he was not slow to take advantage of the chance it afforded him to go in and win; and he did win, and retired from a business which had brought him wealth and fame, only to die from the effects of injuries he received in falling out of a window. Sam Sanford, too, was one of the pioneers, and he worked hard to make minstrelsy popular. He is still hard at work, and, although fortune has not favored him according to his deserts, he still keeps his shoulder to the wheel and pushes along, hoping his fortune will yet come. That it may come quickly is our earnest wish. Genial Frank Brower, too, is one of the relics of the past. Frank is taking things comfortably at his quarters in the Quaker City, but he seldom puts on the cork nowadays. To help a brother in distress Frank is ever ready; and when he does go upon the boards the burst of applause that greets him shows that he is not forgotten, but still has a strong hold upon the favor of those he has done so much to amuse. Billy Whitlock would also "dress up" for benevolent purposes, but one of the ills that flesh is heir to demurs and Billy quietly accepts the situation. Paralysis of the limbs compels the olden-time minstrel to rely upon the aid of crutches when he desires to "go abroad, strange countries for to see." And Dan Emmett, too, one of the original four, humbly plods along in the "little giant of the West," much-burnt Chicago. For a long time Daniel might have been seen in the walks around and plantation dances when Bryant's Minstrels swung corners at 472 Broadway; and although even then pretty well advanced in years, his voice could be heard above the rest, his foot went down with its old time sound, and his hands went up as if he was enjoying the fun amazingly. He occasionally writes a song for the boys, and may help along a friend "out west" once in a while by showing for a benefit, but we believe he is "not on it" as in the early days that tried men's soles. Dan Emmett composed "Dixie," one of the most popular airs that was ever turned loose upon the public. Ah! and there was another Sanford of the bygone days—Jim Sanford, a rare good comedian, and whose hair was never amissed. He and Eph Horn used to be the high cockalorums of the Virginia Serenaders. To see Jim Sanford and Eph. Horn in "The Dutch Drill" was worth more than the price of admission; they played into each other's hands so nicely, and humored each other's gags so cleverly; no jealousy of each other, no stealing each other's fine points, but each trying his best to make the other's gags go off well. Alas! poor Jim Sanford. "He died long ago, long ago;" but he, unlike old Uncle Ned, had hair on the top of his head, and that hair, front and back, "was his joy and pride." Too much glory had made him mad, as it were, and once on the down grade he had not the strength of mind to make an effort to recover himself, and he went down, down, down. Let the cause and the manner of his death be buried with him, and let the sad thoughts of his last hours be forgotten, if possible, in recollections of his early days, and of what "might have been." His old pard, Eph Horn, still lives, and breathes, and has his being, as we may say. Ephraim sadly missed his companion, and it was some time after the decease of Sanford that Horn felt any way comfortable while going it alone. He called the ses over" some months ago, and at last accounts was in Liverpool, showing the good people of that seaport town how to "switch off de bullgine," and drawing tears of laughter from the spectators at his pathetic recital of the fate of Mrs. Hallier, and of his sorrowful tale of "Lady Nancy Bell." But we find we have got ahead without knowing the space we were consuming, so we must give other things the go-by for this once, and wind up with these random thoughts about the minstrel boys.

City Summary.

COL. ROUTH GOSHEN, Bobby Newcomb and Little Lizzie Clootz were the fresh appearances at the Theatre Comique on March 3d. The former, a well-known giant, acted in a sketch called "The Rough Diamond," from the farce of "The Rough Diamond." His appearance was the signal for a general outburst of laughter, as he was comically made up, and his size, contrasted with the other characters about him, under such circumstances, increased the ludicrousness of the situation. A dwarf called Chub acted a policeman, and in such capacity attempted to eject Mr. Goshen from the scene. The latter evinced the possession of some rather remarkable ability, and the sketch, which was very brief, gave much satisfaction. Bobby Newcomb, who made his first appearance at this theatre, performed a number of original songs and dances, which were most enthusiastically received. He was several times recalled, and wound up his entertainment by giving burlesque imitations of Parepa-Rosa and Wachtel, which created much merriment. Little Lizzie Clootz sang character songs and danced a hornpipe in an excellent manner. Her voice is very clear and powerful for one so young, and its intonations are by no means childish. She exhibited a degree of intelligence far beyond her years, and individualized the various characters assumed in a marked degree. This was her first appearance in this city. G. L. Stonte's new Irish sensational dramatic sketch entitled "'98; or, The Murder at the Farm," was acted for the first time and gave satisfaction. Miss Kitty O'Neil, the excellent character dancer, has been of late paying much attention to her wardrobe, appearing very frequently in an entire change of costume. The Misses Carrie Haines, Fanny Lucille and Ida Greenfield continued during the week. The attendance has continued large. This evening, March 10th, the Majiltons, the Matthews family and Arthur Gregory are to reappear; also Kitty Tooley, Dutch comedian, the first appearance in five months. The burlesque of "Robinson Crusoe and his Man Friday; or, The Man, the Monkey, the Cat and the Goat," in which several star artists are engaged to appear, is underlined for an early production.

MISS CELIA IVERD (Mrs. Ben Mason) was the recipient of a matinee benefit at Tony Pastor's on Thursday, March 6th, when, in addition to the entire regular company, Tony Pastor included, the following performers voluntarily gave their professional services:—Hogan and Cole, in their original specialty "When the Clock Strikes Four;" John and Maggie Fielding in a musical sketch called "Blarney;" Neise Seymour and W. H. Brockway in "The Wig Makers;" Reynolds in "Yankee Smith Effusions;" Hugh Fay and Billy Hart as the "Two O'Donahues;" E. D. Davies, scenes in ventriloquism; J. H. Cook and D. S. Vernon in a vocal duet; J. W. Mack and J. F. Sheridan in "Who's Dat Knocking on the Outside Gate?" and George Francis, Charles Foster, T. J. Martin, Mrs. R. G. France and Miss Polly Booth in the farce of "The Two Buzzards." The attendance was very large, the receipts at the box-office being upwards of $700; and is it thought that the receipts from tickets sold outside of the theatre will swell the gross amount to $1,000, which reflects great credit upon all the performers concerned.

BUCKLEY & SHARPLEY'S Burlesque Opera Troupe commenced a season at the St. James Theatre on Monday evening, March 3d. The performance opened with a protean farce written by John F. Poole, entitled "Mugs and Faces; or, The Miseries of Midget." Old Midget is about to give a concert, at which Harry, his nephew, is desirous of performing; but as the uncle refuses his consent, Harry outwits him by assuming a variety of disguises, under which he is engaged to perform upon a variety of musical instruments. The intervals of time necessary for Harry's changes of costume are filled by the loquacity and devilties of a negro servant named Sam. G. B. Frothingham was quite satisfactory in his impersonation of old Midget, and Sam Sharpley as the negro servant Sam kept the audience in an almost constant roar of laughter by his original witticisms. G. Swaine Buckley impersonated Harry, who first assumed the disguise of Josiah Jonathan Jewhittaker, a Yankee; then that of Mons. Jacques Morbleau, a Frenchman; Biddy McCarty, an Irish apple woman, and Cuffee Crowquill, a negro. The dialect of each character was good, and Mr. Buckley succeeded in individualizing the characters assumed. During the farce he performed upon the guitar, cornet, melophone, violin, bones, banjo, and xylophone—a wood and straw instrument. His performances upon the xylophone, and of a song and dance with which the farce closed, were encored. Mr. and Mrs. Fred McAvoy performed the sketch of "Barney's Courtship." Mr. McAvoy occupied rather too much time in making the change from Mrs. Malone to Barney Dwyer, and the dialogue was too long. Mrs. McAvoy has a pleasing personal appearance, and both are fair singers. G. Swaine Buckley performed his specialty entitled "Music on the Brain," playing upon a number of instruments (which were affixed to various portions of his body) at one and the same time. Sam Sharpley then sang, with banjo obligato, "That's Where the Laugh Comes In," and being recalled, sang an "Alphabetical Song;" and in response to a second recall, a burlesque on "Our Good Ship Sails To-night." His interpolated remarks were witty. A burlesque in three acts of the opera of "La Somnambula" (as originally performed by the Buckley family) closed the performance. Miss Eva Brent's excellent and cultivated soprano voice was heard to advantage in the role of Amina (Dina); Mrs. Fred McAvoy was quite satisfactory as Susanna (Lisa); Sam Sharpley found but little opportunity to display his comic powers as Alessio (Lazy Joe); Horace Frail was acceptable as Deacon Duckegrs; Mr. Buckley sang the music of Elvino (Jumbo) quite correctly; George B. Frothingham as Rudolph (Dan Tucker), Fred McAvoy as Aunt Sally, and T. L. Fitch as Cudjo, did not offend. The music of the original opera was rather too closely followed; there was a lack of the minstrel or burlesque element, and the performance was rather tamely received. The attendance has been but moderate, having been undoubtedly influenced by the cold weather and the Lenten season.

E. T. STETSON commenced an engagement at Wood's Museum on the evening of March 3d, acting in the well-known drama of "Neck and Neck," which was performed during the week, including the Saturday matinee. At the other customary matinees a drama entitled "Daylight and Gaslight" was acted for the first times. Mr. Stetson will continue to act in "Neck and Neck" during the present week, and at the matinee performances James J. Bartlett is to perform in a new and sensational drama, entitled "The Devil's Crag."

SHERIDAN AND MACK appeared with Bryant's Minstrels during the past week, performing a song and dance entitled "You'll Hear no Noise," and later in the evening in the old-time sketch of the "Intelligence Office," being aided in the latter by Dave Reed. Neise Seymour and Dan Bryant created much laughter in the revived sketch of "The Echo." W. Henry Rice and W. H. Brockway performed "The Arrival of Lucca;" and the changes in the first part consisted of "Kiss me Good-bye, Darling," sung by W. Raymond; "Ernestine," a new song by Steele, charmingly rendered by William Dwyer; "Kiss me in my Dreams, Love," by Charles Templeton, and "Put me in my Little Bed," by Harry Norman. On March 10th J. W. McAndrews is to return for two weeks, and will reappear in "Uncle Eph's Dream."

HENRY COLLARD, "the pocket Sims Reeves;" Henry Palmer, of Niblo's Garden, and T. Alston Brown, dramatic agent, sail for Europe on April 3d.

THE WILSON BROTHERS, who rank among the best acrobats and gymnasts in the profession, commence an engagement at the Olympic Theatre, performing in "Humpty Dumpty" on March 17th.

THE MERRY ANTICS of America's greatest clown, George L. Fox, aided by the brilliant cote of specialties introduced in "Humpty Dumpty," have served to attract an excellent attendance during the week just closed at the Olympic Theatre, notwithstanding the inclement weather and the Lenten season. The famous "Oat Duet" by the Martens is nightly hailed with acclamations of delight; the acrobatic feats by the Nelson Family elicit lavish applause, and the performances of the Hedouin Arabs, Signor Cassili, Lynock and Smith, also the infant velocipede-riders, add variety to the scene.

CHARLES AND MARIAN YOUNG, Johnny Moran, Miss Belle Gordon, the St. Felix Infant Ballet Troupe, Miss Kitty Rowell and Miss Lizzie Stemple constituted the fresh appearances at Tony Pastor's on the evening of March 3d. Charles and Marian Young, character duettists, made their metropolitan debut on that occasion, and performed in an effective manner a musical sketch illustrative of Scottish life, their dialect and vocal efforts being excellent. After an almost instantaneous change of costume they gave a sketch of Irish peasant-life equally commendable. Mr. Young then performed a bone-solo, which equalled any that we have hitherto heard. Johnny Moran sang Irish character songs which were liberally applauded. He has a good voice, his dialect is excellent, and his manipulations of the shillelagh are truly wonderful. Miss Belle Gordon is entitled to high rank among song-and-dance performers. Possessing a tall, well-moulded figure, a pretty face, a powerful voice and much skill in dancing, she gives eminent satisfaction. The four little girls comprising the St. Felix Infant Ballet Troupe are as pretty, blithe and winsome as ever, and have acquired an ease and a grace in their dancing which render their performances very attractive. Miss Rowell, who has a pleasing face and was tastefully costumed, gave so great satisfaction in singing sensational songs that she was several times recalled. Miss Lizzie Stemple, whose matinee Saturday, and will be repeated to-night. Miss Foster tries her best to please. She possesses energy and talent, and with these and encouragement will in time make a very acceptable actress. Of the support rendered, Lin Harris as Corkscrew Jack, E. R. Dalton as Charles Knaiton, John Hurst as Rickatts, J. J. Riley as Bob Gorman, Mrs. Ayling as Mrs. Deering, and Nellie Stanwood as Elinor Deering, lent material assistance to the star and deserve a word of praise. The Wallace Sisters and company occupy this theatre commencing on the 10th. In the meanwhile the regular company will play in Springfield, Mass., and North Adams. J. F. Rutledge, a fair actor, has left the company. E. S. Meldrum has been engaged to play the leading business for the balance of the season."

JOSEPH MURPHY inaugurated his third engagement at the Buffalo, N. Y., Academy of Music on March 3d, appearing in his specialty of "Help," partly rewritten and arranged since its last production there. Our correspondent, who wrote on March 8th, says: "The play serves as an acceptable channel for Mr. Murphy's versatile abilities. Appearing in four characters, he assumed each with great proficiency. His talents may be ranked far above the average of versatile performers. Very fair support was rendered by the company. Attendance moderate below stairs, while a packed gallery attested the appreciation of the 'gods.' 'Help' ran four nights, and was succeeded on the 7th by the Irish drama of 'Maum Ore,' which held the boards the last two nights of the engagement. 'Help' was given at the Saturday matinee. Miss Minnie Foster opens on the 10th in her specialty of 'Madcap.'"

T. G. RIGGS commenced a week's engagement at the Holliday Street Theatre, Baltimore, Md., on March 3d, appearing in "Shin Fane; or, Shamrock Green." Mr. Riggs assumed five characters, playing them all well and displaying a dry, naïve humor that was infectious. His support was not more than fair, but the scenic effects were fine. The principal roles in the balance of the cast were assumed by Messrs. Gossin, Bokee, Kilbourne, Gallagher, Wise, Miss Lanoyie, Mrs. Wise and Mrs. Lowry. The attendance was moderate. M. W. Fiske is billed for the 10th.....The second week of Maggie Mitchell's engagement at the Grand Opera House was quite as successful as the first, large audiences being on hand at every performance. The matinee on the 1st was perhaps the largest one of the season. On Monday evening, 3d, Miss Mitchell appeared in "Fanchon." Mr. Shewell as Landry, Mr. Varrey as Father Barbeaud, Mr. Eberle as Didier, Mrs. Pennoyer as Old Fadet, and Miss Alice Stanley as Madelon, gave clever impersonations. "Fanchon" was repeated Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoon. On Friday and Saturday evening "Little Barefoot" was presented. Agnes Ethel commences on the 10th in "Agnes."

F. S. CHANFRAU commenced a season of four nights and a matinee at Coates' Opera House, Kansas City, Mo., on March 3d, playing in "Kit, the Arkansas Traveler." Our correspondent, on March 6th, says: "The attendance was fair and the play well presented, much new scenery being put on. George Burt made his first appearance in this theatre and gave the character of Nash Stubbs with fidelity. Miss Forrester, Nobie and Kearney were on for reappearance from her visit east, and as Kit's wife, and Alice in the drama, gave a charming character with ease and grace. H. A. Hales as Manuel Bond, the gambler, displayed much feeling and power in his acting, and Frank Curtis as the darky Julius Cæsar did a clever bit of acting. Augustus Pitou, George Holland and H. W. Harwood were, as usual, very happy in the parts assigned them. Miss Dixon was unable to appear, owing to a severe attack of rheumatism. On the 6th 'Sam' is to be given, and then the company go to Topeka, Kansas, for two nights, thence over the Stevens circuit. Mrs. D. P. Bowers appears March 17th, for one week, and she is followed by Lawrence Barrett. Sam Gladstone is now advertising agent for this circuit."

SUSIE TANNEHILL, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Tannehill, died on Tuesday, 4th inst., on March 2d, after an illness of typhoid fever of two months' duration, in the 22d year of five years and six months. She was born at Memphis, Tenn., and at a very early age gave evidence of the possession of much dramatic ability. She played Eva when only three and a half years of age. She was professionally known as Little Birdie. During the season of 1771-2 she traveled through the south, acting Eva, Mary Morgan, Little Lesh, Willie Carlyle, and other child characters. Her last appearance on the stage was at the Royal Lyceum, Toronto, Ont., acting Little Meenie in McWade's version of "Rip Van Winkle." Her remains were temporarily placed in a vault in that city, and, as soon as the weather and Mrs. Tannehill's health will permit, will be taken to Carlisle, in the Cumberland Valley, and interred in the family burying-ground. She was a child of good promise, and her parents will have the heartfelt sympathy of a large circle of friends and acquaintances in their sad bereavement.

MLLE. ZOE, supported by a dramatic company, under the management of John R. Allen, performed at Evansville, Ind., March 3d, 4th, 5th and 6th.

FURBISH'S FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE COMPANY are to perform at Bay City, Mich., April 5th.

BAKER AND FOX'S Theatre was closed in Chris and Lena" at the Royal Lyceum, Toronto, Ont., during the past week, and Joseph Murphy is to open in "Help" on March 10th.

THE ACTOR'S ORDER OF FRIENDSHIP, of Philadelphia, Pa., publish in another column a preamble and a series of resolutions referring to the loss the dramatic profession has sustained by the death of the late Edwin Forrest, to a careful perusal of which we commend the reader.

HARRY WALL, as he has been known in the profession for some years past, announces that hereafter he will adopt the use of his true and proper christian name, Horace, and requests all parties desiring to communicate with him to address their favors to Horace Wall, as per his card in another column.

THE McKEE RANKIN COMPANY performed "Rip Van Winkle" at Clyde, O., March 8th, and are to be at Fremont on the 10th.

MISS ANNIE FIRMIN and John Jack commence an engagement at the Opera House, Rochester, N. Y., on March 24th, and the following week will produce Olive Logan's "Surf" at the Royal Lyceum, Toronto, Ont.

DAVIS & CO., theatrical agents, Cincinnati, O., who advertise, want ladies and gentlemen for a traveling company.

SHIEL BARRY, Irish comedian, will be at liberty, after May 10th, to accept star engagements for the production of his new sensational drama. Address as per advertisement.

WILLIAM HOWARD LINGARD, Alice Dunning Lingard, and Dickie Lingard, supported by a dramatic company, performed "A Day after the Wedding" and "I. Lodrari" to an excellent audience at the Wheeler Opera House, Toledo, Ohio, on March 6th. Lingard's character sketches were given between the pieces with good effect. "I. Lodrari," an operetta, was well performed. A laughing trio by Messrs. Lingard and Arnold, and Mrs. Lingard elicited an encore.

JOE JEFFERSON appeared at the Brooklyn Academy on the nights of March 3d, 4th, 5th and 6th, to crowded houses. He performed his special character of Rip Van Winkle, in the drama of that name.

THE BROOKLYN THEATRE for the week ending March 8th was well attended, the performances including alternate representations of "Pique" and "The Three Guardsmen," with "Lucretia Borgia" and a farce on Saturday.

"SUNLIGHT," a new sensational play, by Mrs. Martha Lafitte Johnson, was produced for the first time at Col. Wood's Museum, Philadelphia, on the evening of the 3d inst., and served the purpose of introducing a young actress, "Clara," in the role of Meg, a Waif. The plot is very slender, hinging upon the adventures of a young girl rescued from a life of poverty and crime, and the incidents with which it is surrounded are by no means strikingly effective, but the dialogue exhibits Mrs. Johnson's talents in a more favorable light, and gives Clara—a petite and vivacious young lady—an opportunity of displaying, in a creditable manner, her ability as an actress and vocalist of the Lotta school. Clara terminated her engagement on the 8th inst. Mr. James M. Ward and Miss Jennie Montague commence here on the 10th inst., in their sensational drama of the "Winning Hand;" the drama of "The Peep O' Day Boys" being revived at the matinees. The bird show will close on the 15th inst. An embroidery show is announced. The spectacular drama of "Blue Beard" will shortly be produced here.

MISS AGNES ETHEL concluded the second and last week of a successful engagement at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, on the 8th inst. Her benefit on the evening of the 7th inst. was attended by a large audience, who encroached upon the space usually set apart for the orchestra. Watts Phillips' new drama of "Amos Clark" is the current attraction.

AT THE ARCH STREET THEATRE, Philadelphia, "The Streets of New York" constituted the programme during the past week. A local sensational drama entitled "Out in the Streets," founded on Charles Gayler's novel of the same title, will be produced for the first time at this theatre on the 10th inst., the Keene brothers, acrobats, and Jule Keene, Dutch comedian, being engaged during its run.

THE ONLY SON of the late celebrated comedian, John Drew, will shortly make his debut, at the Arch Street Theatre, Philadelphia. He is said to possess much of the humor and vivacity of his father. He will make his debut on the stage on the occasion of the first benefit of his sister, Miss Georgie Drew.

"THE CAVALRY OF THE GANGES" at the Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, continued to attract large audiences during the week ending March 8th. As a spectacle it is a decided success. The scenery is remarkably good, and contains some novel and startling effects. A pretty ballet is introduced, the principal executants being Miss Ried, Première; Vivo Fárrand, Marie Holt, Ella Hunt, Bella Clifton, Estella Drew and Signor Tito Celini. It will be repeated this week, Miss Grace Rawlinson making her first appearance here as Zamine, the rôle assumed heretofore by Miss Sidney Cowell.

ROBINSON'S OPERA HOUSE, Cincinnati, O., is advertised to rent, from June 1st to Sept. 1st, to first-class attractions.

THE FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE COMBINATION opened for a season of two nights and one matinee at Peoria, Ill., on March 7th, to good business, in "Divorce." The play was capitally rendered throughout. They go hence to Burlington, Iowa.

MISS LILLY VERNE DAVENPORT will have her annual benefit on the 19th inst., at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, on which occasion the entire Chestnut Street Theatre company will appear, and Miss Fanny Davenport has been announced as an additional attraction.

AT THE GERMAN THEATRE, Philadelphia, Miss Wilhelmina Rohde was the star last week, making her first appearance on the 3d inst., in "Mathilde," and during the balance of the week as Maria Theresa in the comedy of "Quae Nacht Hans-chen."

THE SECOND ANNIVERSARY of Philadelphia Lodge of Elks will be celebrated on Wednesday evening, the 12th inst., a grand supper at Petrie's, Philadelphia, being part of the festivities on that occasion.

GEO. L. BARCLAY, who delights in subscribing himself "Semi-Lunatic," announces that he is the author of a startling sensational drama, which he is prepared to dispose of.

THE GILBERT SISTERS, having finished an engagement at Bennett's Opera House, Meridian, Miss., avail themselves of our numerous columns to spout commendatorily of that establishment.

THE PLAY of "Davy Crockett," with Mr. Frank Mayo in the title rôle, and Miss Effie E. Elisler as Eleanor Vaughn, was presented for the first time at the Pittsburgh Opera House on the 3d inst., and attracted good audiences all the week. The dialogue and plot of the drama (five acts) possess a fair share of dramatic interest and literary merit, and the scenery is often realistic. Mr. Mayo's portraiture gives universal satisfaction, his robust physique, correct dialect and artistic acting eliciting much favorable comment. Miss Elisler is altogether successful in her rendition, her excellent reading and refined manner winning the hearts of the auditors to an unusual degree. The dramatic future of this young lady is very promising. Mr. Collins as Major Hector Royalson, Mr. Day as Oscar Crampton, and Mr. Huntley as Neil Crampton are painstaking with their several parts, and the other characters (thankless in scope) receive care from those representing them. T. G. Riggs opens on the 10th inst.

CINCINNATI THEATRICALS up to the 7th inst. are reported as appended by our correspondent: "At Robinson's Opera House Joseph Proctor opened on Monday in 'Nick of the Woods,' which was followed on Wednesday and Thursday by 'Ambition.' To-night (Friday) 'Jack Cade' is to be put on, and to-morrow 'Outlanchet' and 'O'Neil the Great.' At the Wednesday matinee the Rubenstein Concert Company appeared and had a good house. Business through the week has been fair. Mr. Proctor's powerful acting is thrilling as ever, and he has had the support from J. M. Hardie. The balance of the company have also done yeoman service, Emma Stone, Ada Dow, Mrs. M. L. Berrel, Nannie Egberts, H. McHale, Harry Clifford, T. J. Hind, J. R. Grismer and J. W. Somers being conspicuous. Kate Quinton was programmed, but did not appear, owing, it is said, to illness. Mr. Proctor closes with the week, and on Monday John Collins opens in 'Rory O'More' and 'The Happy Man.'.....At Wood's Theatre Ada Harland was billed to open on Monday in 'The Boy Detective,' but failed to reach the city, having been taken sick in Pittsburgh. The piece was performed two nights, with M. B. Curtis, of the stock company, in the stellar roles. He did cleverly, but business went right down, and on Wednesday Kitty Blanchard, in 'Berths, the Sewing Machine Girl,' was substituted. She has drawn moderately. The many parts in the play have taken nearly the entire company, and R. Russell, W. H. Otis, D. Ralton, F. Right, J. Marble, Mary Stewart, Nellie McHenry, Carrie Jamison and Jennie McClellan have figured advantageously, the cast being about the same as Miss Harland's support last fall. On Monday, 10th, Johnny Thompson follows in 'On Hand,' his second appearance this season. On the 17th and expenses much less. We go to Green Castle, Danville, Brazil, Terre Haute, Washington, Vincennes, and are engaged for three concerts at the Opera House, Evansville, Ind., commencing March 14th."

STEPHENSON, B flat cornet-player, who can be addressed care of this office, wants an engagement.

F. W. NASH, B flat cornet and E flat alto-player, advertises for an engagement.

W. FLORANCE, leader of orchestra, advertises for an engagement.

THE SEQUIN ENGLISH OPERA TROUPE performed at Syracuse, N. Y., March 5th and 6th.

J. O. ALLEMUS, who advertises, publishes the Bryan O'Lynn quickstep, which is arranged for brass bands.

KELLY & LEON'S Comic Opera Company, appeared in "Laschen and Frischen" and "Mons. Chasseure," at the Brooklyn Lyceum, during the week ending March 8th, to decidedly better business than they had the first week. The same bill is to be repeated this week.

A. J. PECK'S benefit concert occurs in Music Hall, Boston, Mass., April 9th, and Rabbistein, Wieniawski and Theodore Thomas are to appear.

A CONCERT will be given on the 12th inst., at Tremont Temple, Boston, Mass., for the benefit of the families of the firemen killed in the late Hanover-street fire, at which Varley, Mrs. West, Mrs. Kempton, Therese Liebe, George R. Titus, A. T. Hills, the Adelphi Quartette and Samuel Bindley appear.

F. SCHMIDT, clarionet and alto player, advertises for an engagement.

G. CAMERON, baritone, solo trombone-player and second violinist, can be engaged. Address as per advertisement.

RUBINSTEIN and Wieniawski gave a matinee performance at Robinson's Opera House, Cincinnati, on the 5th, drawing well.

MASTER SHELTON, the promising boy-organist, gave a concert at the Mount Vernon M. E. Church, Baltimore, Md., on March 5th, at the request of a large number of the most prominent citizens of that burgh.

A CLARIONET PLAYER, who can be addressed care of this office, wants an engagement.

THE ROGERS FAMILY, Swiss bell-ringers, will be at Wilmington, N. C., March 10th, 11th and 12th; Goldsboro, 13th; Newbern, 14th and 15th; Raleigh, 17th, 18th and 19th; Fayetteville, 20th and 21st; Greensboro, 22d; Danville, 24th and 25th; Lynchburg, 26th and 27th; Petersburg, Va., 28th and 29th; Norfolk, 31st and April 1st; Brooklyn, L. I., April 21st, for two weeks. The following notices from the southern press speak highly of their entertainments:—

THE ROGERS BELL RINGERS.—The Berger Family gave one of their magnificent concerts in Irwin's Hall last evening. The hall was crowded, and the audience were greatly delighted in every way with the performance.—Columbia, Daily Union, Feb. 26.

THE ROGERS BELL RINGERS.—The concert of the bell-ringers last evening drew an immense crowd to Irwin's Hall, the aisles and lobby being filled to repletion. The Misses Etta and Anna Berger have lost nothing, however, of the grace and perfection which win this people wherever they appear, and they will receive again a cordial welcome. From here the troupe will make a short tour through the upper country, returning to give another concert in Columbia next week.—Columbia, S. C., Daily Herald, Feb. 27th, 1873.

Variety Halls.

ALINE LE FAVRE, whose portrait may be found upon our first page, died at Memphis, Tenn., on Feb. 25th, at the age of 26 years, she having been born in New York city in the year 1847. She made her first appearance in public at the German Theatre in Chicago, Ill., in 1863, playing the French Spy," and shortly afterwards entered the variety profession in that city, at once achieving success. Endowed with a well-moulded and finely-proportioned figure, in her representations of ancient statues she appeared to remarkable advantage. By her dancing of the can-can in a sketch entitled "Paris by Gaslight," she won a reputation which extended throughout the country, and immediately secured engagements for her wherever she sought them. She was an expert in the use of the small sword, an excellent vocalist, a good burlesque actress, and had attained a wonderful proficiency in drilling with a musket. She was considered one of the best general performers in her profession. She had performed in most of the variety theatres in the country, and her engagements oftentimes revived the drooping fortunes of a falling theatre. Her family and relatives in New York city are of the highest respectability, and on that account she ever declined offers of engagements to appear here. Notwithstanding that the peculiar nature of her professional business caused the thoughtless often to hurl shafts of scandal at her, it is said that she bore an unblemished reputation, and was a kind and an affectionate wife. In 1860 she was married to Mr. Arthur Le Feinn, a telegraph operator in Memphis, Tenn., while he was on his death-bed—brought there by a pistol-shot fired with intent to kill another man. Miss Le Favre first met de Pelgram at Chicago, Ill., where he kept a fencing academy, and they traveled and performed together, he being professionally known as Mons. Vieudemont. He was a master of the small sword and other weapons, as well as an excellent dancer. On the 31st inst., she married Mr. John Manning, who up to the time of her demise, accompanied her during all of her engagements. During the past year, while fulfilling an engagement at San Francisco, Cal., she was made an honorary member of the San Francisco Cadets, out of compliment to her skill in drilling with a musket. On her return east, while performing at Virginia City, Nevada, she was made an honorary member of the fire department of that city, and presented with two silver bricks bearing the respective inscriptions of "To Aline Le Favre from the Fire Department of Virginia City, Nevada, April, 1872," and "John Piper to Aline Le Favre." She came at once to Baltimore, Md., where she fulfilled a successful engagement, thence went to Cheyenne, where she attracted large audiences for five consecutive weeks, and left for Memphis, Tenn., where she was announced to perform on Feb. 13th, but on her arrival she was too ill to do so. Rather than break faith with the manager and public, she took a carriage, drove to the theatre, and, on the stage, informed the house, the audience and stated her inability to perform. On her return to her hotel she grew worse, and continued sinking until she died upon the day above recorded. Her husband, Mr. Manning, never left her bedside during her illness, and accompanied her remains to this city, where the funeral took place on Sunday last, attended by her only her relatives and the friends of the family. Aline Le Favre was a name which she had assumed for professional purposes. Her husband in his deep affliction will have the sympathy of a large circle of professional friends and acquaintances.

A PARTNER for double song and dance and general business is wanted by Andrew Hamilton, whose address will elsewhere be found.

AT THE PEOPLE'S THEATRE, Kansas City, the freshest face was Miss Kittie Le Roy's, an excellent jig-dancer, whose costuming and general appearance are good. Owen Nestar, alias "Patty," made his first appearance on any stage during the week. His lines were well committed and his acting quite striking. Miss Gussie Lamereaux has recovered, and met with a good reception on her reappearance. Lucy Adams is still acting, looking better than at last writing. Blanche Stanley departs this week. Nettie Melrose, Frankie Etta, Guy Linton, Chas. E. Dobson, Chas. Rice, D. R. Allen and Hurley and Mart still remain. On March 6th the Wesley Pantomime Troupe, Miss Ada Johnson, J. W. Buckley, also Oglesby and Arthur, were to have appeared. Tom Harper has gone to Lincoln, Neb.——It reported that Lost Ridge Hall will soon be opened as a variety theatre and restaurant, something after the style of London music halls. So wrote our correspondent on March 4th.

THE WESTON SISTERS are to close their engagement at Harrisburg, Pa., on March 15th, and leave New York on the 17th for New Orleans, La., where they are engaged at Bidwell's Academy of Music.

THERE IS A VARIETY SHOW at Salt Lake City, Utah, and at the time of our most recent advices from there the Kimball Brothers, Lon McCarthy, Lew Parker, Billy Holton, Campbell, Miller, Miss Carrie Chapman, Miss Wheeler and May Vannetta constituted the company.

CASTELOTTI, gymnast, who can be addressed at Aims' American Theatre, Pittsburgh, Pa., can be engaged for two weeks from March 17th.

GEO. FERRELL advertises for a serio-comic vocalist and a singing chambermaid.

STAR ARTISTS are wanted for Enoch's Variety Opera House, Philadelphia, Pa. Address as per card elsewhere.

LOLA MARVIN, serio-comic vocalist, is at present in Winter Gardens, Chicago, Ill., where she can be addressed.

THE LA VERDE CHILDREN have purchased the sketch "Out in the Snow; or, The Outcasts," and performers are cautioned, through a card elsewhere, against infringing upon their rights.

H. W. HARPER advertises for variety performers and musicians for his traveling canvas-show.

QUEEN, the wizard, is to commence on March 10th a two weeks' engagement at Neville's Variety Theatre, Montreal, C. E.

AT BERRY'S OPERA HOUSE, Wilkesbarre, Pa., Howard and Egbert, double song and dance, also Dick Gorman, comedian, made their first appearance on March 6th. Jake Berry is to take a benefit at the Music Hall on the 17th.

BARTINE'S NEW OPERA HOUSE, Dayton, Ohio, drew crowded houses last week, the new appearances being Brown and Sandford, bar and trapeze gymnasts; M'lle Emma, ceiling-walker; Cincinnatus, a genteel song and dance man; Bernard Peters, Ulrich and Blanche Lassier, and Fred Bernard, comedian. Annie Hindle, whose engagement has been delayed by sickness, was to open on the 10th. Nellie Clark closed on the 1st, but was to reappear on the 10th, playing meantime in Indianapolis. The balance of the company at this hall consists of Charley Bartine, comedian; Joe Moll, Tommy Winnett, Minnie Sievers, Millie Bascore, Lottie Winnett, Minnie Baker and Ned Williams. The hall is pretty well stocked with scenery, and has an orchestra of five pieces. A ladies' matinee is given each Saturday afternoon, which has proved an attractive feature. Joe Moll closed on the 8th, going to Cincinnati.

ARTISTS OF ABILITY are wanted for the Griswold Opera House, Troy, N. Y. Address as per advertisement.

THE FRANK ARMIVALS at Fred Aims' American Theatre, Pittsburgh, last week, were M'lle Geraldine, Master Leo, George Leopold, M'lle Cerito, Miss Patti Rosa, Tommy Murray and Castelotti. Attendance good. M'lle Geraldine, Master Leo and George Leopold's performances elicit warm and deserved applause. In their line these people are far in advance of many of their competitors. M'lle Cerito's transformation dance is one of the most conspicuous features of the programme, and is keenly relished by the audience, and M'lle does some fine dance with much vigor and skill. Tommy Murray gives his Irish songs meritoriously. He has a good voice, and his quiet, genteel manner redounds to his popularity. Castelotti's ladder performance is, in many respects, wonderful, and holds the audience spellbound while being accomplished, and on retiring the gentleman is encored by hearty applause. James H. Budworth, the Carrolls, Morrissey and Emerson, Clinetop Sisters and Tilly Prestage have also appeared every evening during the week.

THE LEVANTINE BROTHERS, George and Fred, Miss Sadie Rogers, Thomas and Heany, Miss Annette La Point and Mack, and Jeffrey were the new people at the Variety Theatre, Pittsburgh, last week, and business continued good. Geo. Levantine, in his specialty of "The Crystal Pyramids," acquits himself with great credit, and gains generous applause. The brothers do a horizontal-bar act cleverly. Sadie Rogers is a jig artiste, and is mightily recalled. The mixed clog dance of Thomas and Heany is noticeable for precision of time. Miss La Point's terpsichorean efforts meet with a fair degree of favor. Mack and Jeffrey are gymnasts and ceiling-walkers of more than ordinary ability, and their acts are deservedly applauded. The entertainments commence with a female minstrel scene, introducing a number of ladies, tastefully costumed. Billy Barry officiates as bones, J. W. McAndrews as tambo, and H. W. Williams as interlocutor, all satisfactorily performing their duties. The 8th Ward of the "Twin Cities" closes the show, with H. W. Williams in the leading role. McAndrews opens with Dan Bryant this week.

HAWLEY AND MILACO, gymnasts, go to Harrisburg on the 10th of March for one week, and thence to New York city.

JOHNNY PENDY, character vocalist, is at present performing at Fox's American Theatre, Philadelphia, Pa., where he can be addressed.

TONEY HARVEY, one of the most popular and well-known of Ethiopian delineators, died in Baltimore, Md., early in the morning of March 8th, a victim to that hideous epidemic which has been scourging the length and breadth of the land for the past year and a half. His real name was Thomas Wilson Smith; he was a native of Richmond, Va., about forty years of age, and had been in the business ever twenty years. His last appearance in public was on Tuesday evening, Feb. 25th, at the Baltimore Opera House. He leaves a widow, professionally known as Kate Barrown. With a sincerity and kindliness that is not post-mortem, we can say that Toney was one of the most genial, true and big-hearted of men; he was a great favorite with the profession as well as the public, and had, perhaps, not an enemy in the world. The tribute paid to his memory at the Opera House, at the matinee last Thursday, was appropriate, beautiful and touching. In the first part, Toney's chair at the end was draped in mourning, and his tamborine lay thereon, whilst all the performers wore crape. Some graceful verses, written by Billy Devere, were read by N. B. Skinner. Lena Lillian sang "What Has Made Thee Sad, My Darling?" Blanche Castle, "Ring the Bell Softly," and Frank Hove, "The Vacant Chair," as a finale—each of these with chorus. During the rendition of the last song the professionals in the audience, of whom a large number were present, rose and uncovered. The scene at this moment was so impressive and affecting that many, both on the stage and in front, wept. Billy Devere deserves a large meed of praise for his attention and devotion to Toney during his illness and in his last moments. The same is applicable to Mr. John Lutts, of Lutts' Hotel. So wrote our correspondent on March 8th.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.—At a meeting of the theatrical profession and the friends of Toney Harvey, deceased, held at Lutts' Hotel, Baltimore, March 9th, 1873, the following preamble and resolutions were submitted and unanimously adopted:—

Whereas, It has pleased the Almighty, in the dispensation of his wise and inscrutable will, to remove from the bosom of his wife a beloved companion, and from the ranks of his profession an honored member; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we keenly feel the loss which we have sustained, and that we deeply and sincerely sympathize with the bereaved wife, who has been thus called upon to weep over an early grave, and assure her that the memory of the departed one has a place in our hearts which neither time nor circumstance can erase; and,

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be published in the New YORK CLIPPER. CHAS. HOWARD, President.
JAS. W. COMINS, Secretary.

CARD OF THANKS.—At a meeting of the theatrical profession, held in Baltimore, Md., on March 9th, 1873, it was resolved that we express our heartfelt appreciation and thanks to Mr. John Lutts, of Lutts' Hotel, and Mr. William Devere, a professional friend, for their kind and self-sacrificing attention to our deceased friend, Toney Harvey, during his illness and in his last moments.

Resolved, That the above resolutions be published in the New YORK CLIPPER. CHAS. HOWARD, President.
JAMES W. COMINS, Secretary.

In Memory of Toney Harvey.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY BILLY DEVERE.

"Good-bye, old pards!" the years roll by obliterating all—
We'll ne'er forget the kindly face that hangs on memory's wall;
We'll recollect thee, as of yore, the good, warm-hearted friend;
To all that's right and virtuous thy generous heart would bend.

"Good-bye, old pards!" We've stood where fame proclaims the mighty dead,
And we have gazed with wond'ring eye on royalty's last bed;
But all the mausoleums of earth could move our spirits less
Than that small tablet rated by love to show its hopelessness.

"Good bye, old pards!" and may that gleam of immortality
Come to thee like the silver sheen of moonlight on the sea,
To brighten all the dreary way thy weary feet have trod,
Through angel-paths to lead thee ever nearer unto God.
Baltimore, March 7th, 1873.

CINCINNATI VARIETY HALLS are written up by our correspondent, dating the 7th, as follows: "At the Pacific Garden the new appearances this week have been Johnny Bucklin, comedian, and a clever song and dance team, Mons. Duverney, a fine contortionist; Mlle. Florintaine, contortionist and club-swinger, and May Alenetta, a strong vocalist. Brown and Sandford, Mlle. Emma and Fannie Murrell closed last week, going to Dayton, and Harry Watson and Lew Clark wound up on Wednesday, going to Bay City, Mich. Frankie Lee and J. W. Berkley are to close to-morrow, 8th, going to Pittsburgh. Bucklin and Miss Alenetta also close with the week. Biz has been quite good this week. On Monday next, 10th, Flora Ballenl, Harry Ballenl and Master Julius; Joe Moll, Dutch comique; Mlle. Russelle, and Murts and Turner, gymnasts, are to open.....At the Olympic the new people this week have been Ella Martin, vocalist and jiggist; Mattie Allston, vocalist; Minnie Warner, vocalist, and Morton Woodcastor. Miss Allston, for some reason, appeared only once. Business is reported good. Next (this) week Walter Gale, character vocalist, and Gussie Keating, vocalist and dancer, are to be added. The burlesque of 'Pocahontas' is also to be put on. Prof. Lawrence, Charley Hanlin, Charley Winnett, Harry Wilton, Hattie Wilton and Alice Rose still remain.....At the Race Street Varieties there is nothing new. Next week Kitty Whitland and Mattie Allston are to open. Welsh for the coming of the great show.

THE VARIETIES AT SCRANTON, PA., closed on March 8th, owing to the prevalence of the smallpox. During the recess the house will be renovated, and after a few weeks will be reopened with an entirely new company. The departures on the 8th were John Doyle to Wilkesbarre; Fannie Deane and Carrie Craven to Baltimore, Md.; Lew and Lena Cole to Newark, N. J.; Detablie, Angela and troupe, also the Brandt Sisters, Wilkesbarre. Annie Hindle has been lying ill at Scranton for a week or more, but is recovering and will soon resume her profession.

J. B. HILLSTEN was taken ill with pneumonia, combined with rheumatism, on Feb. 26th, since which time he has been confined to his room in Philadelphia, Pa.

JOHN DENIER'S TROUPE are to perform at Grand Rapids, Mich., one week commencing March 10th.

DON MILLS' THEATRE COMIQUE, Bay City, Mich., opened March 3d with an overflowing house, which has continued. During the winter the hall has been thoroughly overhauled, new scenery put up, and its general appearance much improved. The hall would have been opened several days earlier had not the proprietor been disappointed by his stage-manager, George Kurtz, who pledged to be on hand on time and then engaged elsewhere. The troupe which made their bow to a Bay City audience are as follows: Miss Viola Clifton, Master Wallace and la petite Flora, Miss Minnie Moore, Ada St. Clair, Joe Lovely, Rosa St. Clair, Normandie and Leuing, Tommy Waters, and Ned Reed, stage manager. The company is a strong one and give an excellent entertainment. Miss Minnie Burton and Miss May Fielding are billed for March 10th, and Messrs. Reed and Mack, Gus Peters and Mlle Annetta, will open March 17th. We wrote our correspondent on March 7th.

AT SMITH'S OPERA HOUSE, East Saginaw, Mich., business continues good. Miss Gertie Granville is taking immensely. George Kurtz's rendition of "Old Black Joe" was all that could be asked for. He is a good card, and a very versatile performer. Low and Frank Collins are warmly received nightly in their dances. The Claire Sisters are the best female gymnasts and acrobats that were ever in Saginaw, and are taking well. Miss Marie Nichols is a fair performer. Den and Lillie Howe continue to receive their allotment of encores for their really excellent acting. Frank Linn is a host within himself. Little Eddie is a prodigy, and does a fine business. Marie Roscelle opened on the 3d, and has taken well these far. Miss Lou Francis opened on the 6th. Kate Partington, banjoist and jig-dancer, appears on the 10th, and the Arnold Brothers, double song and dance men, on the 17th.....The Rink, it is expected, will be soon changed into a variety hall. Mr. Kaufmann, the proprietor, has, we believe, already contracted for the stage-building, and has partly engaged some performers. So wrote our correspondent on March 6th.

A. ARMOUR, with his troupe of performing dogs, can be engaged for the tenting season. See his address elsewhere.

MISS MOLLIE WILSON, serio-comic; also Lang and Parsell, pantomimists, commence at Tooker's Varieties, Norfolk, Va., on March 10th.

AT THE GRAND CENTRAL THEATRE, Philadelphia, an entertainment of a diversified character attracted large audiences during the week ending March 8th. The La Markoes, gymnasts; A. W. Maclin, spade-dancer; Johnny Harris, banjoist; Master Brooks, songs and dances, and Mlle. Carlotti and Mons. Reveni, equestrian performers, were the new faces. The La Markoes, Ivan Rizzan and Veronets do a remarkably good aerial act, performing some of the most daring feats with neatness and dexterity that well merit the enthusiastic applause of the audiences. Mlle. Zoe Zecoetti and Mons. Reveni appeared to much advantage in the trapeze act, and were the recipients of deserved applause. Johnny Harris in his banjo solo met with much applause, as also did Maffin in his clever act of the spade dance, and Master Brooks. The ballet of the "Lake of Nymphs" was produced for the first time on the 3d inst., the soles of Mlles. De Rosa and Elise, and the tasteful and novel groupings of the corypheus, being admirably arranged by Prof Geo. W. Smith. Pete Lee terminated an engagement on the 8th inst. This week Alex Sanfrein and his pantomime troupe, comprising Mlle. Josie Zanfretta, T. Mc Vonnie, Max: Walhalla, Charles H. Bernard, Miss Sallie Warner and others will make their appearance here in the pantomime of "The Green Monster." Sam S. Sanford, Miss Kitty Henderson, G. F. Moore, James Taylor, Miss Ada Alexander and Tom Turner will be added to the company on the 10th inst. Prof. C. Risley has been tendered a complimentary benefit at this theatre on the 14th inst., for which many artists in the city have volunteered their services.

MLLE. FLORA LEONETTA, now performing in the capacity of a danseuse at Enoch's Varieties, Philadelphia, and for several years in the profession, is not the vocalist advertised as Mlle. Leonetta.

THE MANAGEMENT OF Griswold Opera House, Troy, N. Y., announce a spring season of variety entertainments on the 3d very auspiciously. The principal performers have already made a hit. Business during the week continued first-rate. The principal features were Healy, Conway and Miss Saunders in their triple statue clog; J. W. Clark in his banjo solos; S. S. Purdy in negro acts and Ethiopian eccentricities; the Watson Brothers in their parlor gymnastic act, and hat-spinning; Rosa Cerito in Pas de Zouave. Miss Alston, in some reason, her iron-jaw act. The performance concluded each evening with a capital pantomimic sketch, entitled "Nicodemus," in which Robert Butler, John Foster, George Watson, Rosa Cerito and Clara de Berg appeared. On the 10th the company will be strengthened by the addition of Ada Gray, Master Barney, Ada Laurent and Billy Pastor. Richard R. Wemyss is the business manager of the house, Edwin Booth Dramatic Company the treasurer of this house.....Acker's Varieties opens April 21st. Ed Banker, Billy Blair, Geo. Gray, John Henshaw, Howard and Egbert, are the people engaged for the first week.....The arrivals at the Globe Variety Theatre the past week were Della Gonzales, serio-comic; Ella Sheldon, song and dance, and Barney Reynolds, Dutch comedian. Archie Hughes, John Reese, G. Brooks Clark and M'lle Lea, remain in the company.

AT THE THEATRE COMIQUE, Washington, D. C., the new appearances on the 3d were the Romellis, Emile Goraux, Polly Daly and the Colyer Brothers. The Romellis in their gymnastic feats and poses are immense. Polly Daly is pretty, dresses splendidly and in good taste, and her style of singing has made her wonderfully popular. The Colyer Brothers in song and dance and double clog nightly encored. Emile Goraux is a juggler of more than ordinary merit, and performs some surprising feats. The departures on the 8th were Dolsen and Mons. Leopold, Geo. Knight to Baltimore Opera House, Gus Peters and Mlle. Annetta. The announcements for the 10th are Saroney and Russell, Miss Jessie Howard, Miss Clara Moore and Mons. Alex. Blandowski, who succeeds Gus Peters as maître de ballet. Business has been excellent.....The new appearances at Metropolitan Hall closing were Miss Annie Fox, a very pleasing vocalist; Ned Fox, a first-class Ethiopian comedian; Lizzie Johnson, dancer; Josie Farran and Jennie Eagan, two very pretty and stylish fancy dancers. Matinees were given on the 3d, 4th and 5th, attracting large houses. The departures on the 8th were George White, to the Baltimore Odeon, and Mlle. Rosalie, to the Globe Varieties. Edwin Thomas joins the company on the 10th.

THINGS ARE LIVELY at the Merrimac Varieties, Manchester, N. H., at present. The new arrivals the past week were the "Narragansett Boys," Muller and Gardiner, from Providence, who do a neat double clog, also songs and dances. Jimmy Roach, a favorite, has been re-engaged. Jim Fox, Irish comic singer, made a first appearance at Opera House, Toledo, Ohio, last week. Clarke and Hames, Reed and Mack, and Johny Loveland left on the 8th. Geo. W. Mankin, trapeze artist and general performer, appears March 10th.

MISS EMMARETTA, a well-known variety performer, died at St. Louis, Mo., on March 2d, of inflammation of the brain.

A SOCIAL GATHERING of the B. P. O. Elks was held at the Metropolitan Theatre, Washington, D. C., Thursday evening, March 6th. The following named members were present: Lew Benedict, Geo. S. Knight, Geo. Edwards, James Porter, Frank Dumont, George McNeil and G. J. Lennox. Among the other professionals present were Otto Burbank, Ned Fox, B. Henza, Fox and Ward, James Douglas, Lew Spencer, the Colyer brothers, George Nachman, George White, Pat Rooney, R. Jean Buckley, T. B. Hilton, D. Smith, Pat Reynolds, and a host of others connected with the profession. James Porter was elected chairman, and Frank Dumont, secretary. Mr Lew Benedict delivered a touching eulogy in memory of their deceased brother, Toney Harvey, who died in Baltimore on March 8th of smallpox. Suitable resolutions of sympathy and condolence to his afflicted widow and family were passed, and a vote of thanks extended to Mr. J. J. Lutts, proprietor of the European Hotel, Baltimore, (and ordered to be published in the CLIPPER), who during the deceased's sickness refused to have him removed from his house. Professionals visiting Baltimore should remember this gentleman, who has proved himself to be the friend of showmen. In conclusion, Otto Burbank destroyed an impromptu address, extolling the merits of the deceased that brought tears to the eyes of many present. "Auld Lang Syne" was sung, and the first social gathering of B. P. O. Elks in Washington terminated.

THE MATHEWS FAMILY performed to good houses at Donnelly's Brooklyn Olympic during the week ending March 8th. This week Col. Goshen, giant, is to be the star, assisted by a lively variety company, including Fannie Lestlie, Lou Greenfield, Carrie Haines, "Chip" the nondescript, and Whalley, the ventriloquist.

TWO UTILITY LADIES and a utility man who can also paint scenery, are wanted for Smith's Opera House, East Saginaw, Mich. See advertisement.

THE NEW PEOPLE at the Odeon, Newark, N. J., met with a hearty reception on the 3d. Several new acts were introduced during the week which met with favor. The new faces this week are Reynolds and Romer, and Mlle. Selina. George Harris and Lillie Bertine go to the Paterson Odeon for two weeks. The Theatre Comique, which was closed for several days, reopened on the 8th with a fair company, under the management of Merchant & James. A crowded house greeted the performances.

AT DEAGLE'S VARIETIES, St. Louis, Mo., there were no arrivals or departures during the past week.

Negro Minstrelsy.

CHARLES MELVILLE, the well-known business agent, has joined Kelly & Leon's Minstrels at Brooklyn, L. I.

WELCH & NEWCOMB'S MINSTRELS performed at Toledo, O., March 3d, to good business. The comicalities of Fayette Welch, the bone castinet solo of Dave Wilson, and the singing of F. Rapier were the prominent features of the entertainment.

WILSON AND THE BURTON BROTHERS' MINSTRELS, recently organized at Utica, N. Y., will shortly start upon a tour. The officers and company are as follow: John F. Burton, manager and proprietor; Sam. T. Wilson, stage-manager; Morris H. Burton, business manager; Del. A. Bennett, properties; J. J. Pittendale, leader of orchestra; Morris Burton and George Harrington, song and dance; "Happy Daddy" Burton, Sam Wilson and George Shelby. CARNCROSS & DIXEY'S MINSTRELS are billed to perform at Evansville, Ind., March 19th and 20th.

HARRY ROBINSON'S MINSTRELS are billed at Bay City, Mich., for March 20th.

"HUMPTY DUMPTY," performed by the Christie Trick Pantomime Company, ran at Mooley's Brooklyn Opera House to fair houses during the week ending March 8th. This week the "Color Guard" is to be produced.

HARRY ROBINSON'S MINSTRELS gave an entertainment at Harrisburg, Pa., on the 6th, to a crowded house. The first part introduced fifteen people, who presented a neat appearance. The olio consisted of a number of amusing acts, and the evening's entertainment concluded with Robinson's sketch of "Horse Disease, Epizooty," introducing Robinson, Johnny Seay, Billy Diamond, Ali Miles, Billy Gilmyen and others.

ARLINGTON, COTTON & KEMBLE'S MINSTRELS, Chicago, Ill., are playing to good houses, and giving a capital bill of fare. The burlesque of "Robert Macaire," "Sketches of Nature," "Abyssinian Dwarf" and a new ballad by R. T. Tyrrell constitute the features of the bill. The first named piece is mounted and played in the most satisfactory manner, and evokes no little enthusiasm.

THE ALHAMBRA, San Francisco, meets with satisfactory business. The company remains unchanged.

CARNCROSS AND DIXEY'S MINSTRELS opened for a week at Pike's Opera House, Cincinnati, on the 3d, and drew very fair houses, says our correspondent, who writes:—"They give a very genteel performance, and have greatly pleased their audiences, the sweet singing of Carncross having particularly taken the public fancy. E. F. Dixey and A. J. Talbot on the ends are a very funny couple, and Talbot's stump-speech seemed to hit. The vocalisms of J. A. Bryant, Chri Rodgers and T. Lamont's songs and dances and clogging of the Daly Brothers; harp solos of R. H. Stratford, and the usual run of farces, together with burlesques on 'Divorce' and 'A Flash of Lightning,' completed the programmes. Con T. Murphy is the interlocutor. There is too much of force and too little of variety in the entertainment, but otherwise it is good."

ROBINSON & PIPER'S MINSTRELS, a new organization for public favor, are billed at Peoria, Ill., March 18th.

FRED WILSON'S MINSTRELS will commence the season at Jacksonville, Ill., on March 24th, and the performers engaged are requested, through a card in another column, to assemble for rehearsal at St. Louis, Mo., March 18th. A tenor vocalist and banjo-player are wanted.

THE EGYPTIAN OPERA OF "THE FLASH" was produced for the first time by Frank Moran's Minstrels, Philadelphia, on the evening of the 3d inst., Billy Manning was an excellent representative of Gumbo Cuff, and Unsworth as Pete Williams, Eugene as Miss Dinah Rose, and Frank Moran as Sam Johnson, helped to bring the excellent entertainment to a close amidst roars of laughter. This week, a local burlesque, entitled "Agnes; or, The Cat-A-Rack of the Banjoes," will be produced. A number of prominent citizens of Philadelphia have tendered Frank Moran a complimentary benefit, and Saturday evening, the 15th inst., has been settled upon as the date for this testimonial to a popular comedian. Frank Moran was so seriously ill on the 8th inst. as to be unable to appear.

AT THE ARCH STREET OPERA HOUSE, Philadelphia, the programme presented by Simmons & Slocum's Minstrels during the week ending 8th inst. included Col. John R. Johnson's "Tour of Europe." The views are well executed, and accompanied by a humorous dialogue between E. N. Slocum, Lew Simmons and Billy Sweatnam, and characteristic songs, acts and choruses by the company.

DUPREZ AND BENEDICT'S Minstrels occupied Lincoln Hall, Washington, D. C., March 3d, 4th, 5th and 6th, to fair houses. Their performances were excellent throughout. The first-part minstrel scene, with Lew Benedict and George Edwards on the ends, and J. T. Gulick as interlocutor, was particularly good. The music, both vocal and instrumental, was much admired. In the olio, Fox and Ward, in plantation songs and dances, were repeatedly encored. The burlesque singing of Ernest Linden, and the banjo solos of George Edwards were features of the programme.

NED FOX, Ethiopian comedian, joins Fred Wilson's Minstrels, now organizing in St. Louis, on March 18th.

NED QUINN, late of the "Flying Dutchman" minstrel, is organizing a party in the upper part of New Hampshire, to work smaller towns. Billy Cotton has recently joined them.

MORAN AND MANNING'S MINSTRELS, from the Eleventh Street Opera House, Philadelphia, start out on a traveling tour on the 7th of April.

Circuses.

THE WALRUS purchased by O. J. Ferguson at Salem, Mass., of Capt. John Sanborn, will not travel as a side-show to Frost's Royal Colossean, but will be exhibited in Van Amburgh & Co.'s Great Golden Menagerie.

PICARD'S GREAT EUROPEAN CIRCUS was announced on Jan. 25th to shortly arrive at Valparaiso, S. A., and give a series of eight exhibitions. Among the performers were Mlle Rosalie, rider; M'lle Celina, cords elastique; Signorina Brigazzi, athlete; Peter McFimlie, Irish jester; the Dale Brothers, jugglers; Jose Camille Rodriguez, Spanish clown; Signor Carigazzi, trapeze performer; the Rotusillion brothers, aerial gymnasts; James Hickey, rider and horse-trainer, and the Vercelles brothers, athletes and hat-spinners. The latter are announced as having "performed 120 nights at Niblo's Theatre, New York. In the great tableaux of 'The Black Crook.'"

THE VICTORIA BROTHERS, trapeze performers, advertise for an engagement for the tenting season.

JOHN WILSON'S CIRCUS completed a third successful week on March 1st, at San Francisco, Cal.

DR. SPALDING has joined a copartnership with Pat Ryan, of Albany, and one of the features of their circus will be a performance with Dr. Spalding's "Behmoth" beast, of Albany, said to be one of the best drivers in the country.

LLOYD, of Albany, N. Y., has just completed for Adam Forepaugh's Circus a set of harness for a fourteen-horse team, belonging to the band chariot; red imperial; vermilion mounted with silver; crests, St. George and the Dragon; full-plated centre-bar buckles, magnificent saddles—vermillion and silver, mounted with silver; names of owners plated all the way down; hand carved, style, silver-plated; Hanoverian bits, steel, silver-plated. This single set of harness costs Forepaugh $1,200, the largest sum ever paid in this or any other country for the same amount of leather and vermillion. He has also just finished a twelve-horse harness for L. B. Lent, costing $1,000; also a ten-horse team harness for Montgomery Queen, valued at $600. He now manufacturing for John O'Brien fifty sets of cash harness, to cost $6,000, and a ten-horse harness, to cost $900.

JOHN HENRY COOKE will shortly leave England to join John B. Murray's circus, for which he has been engaged at a salary of $200 a week, it is stated, and during the season he will ride a new act entitled "Saul's perilleux; or, The Bounding Jockey and Wonder of Jerome Park."

FRANK HOWARD, a gymnast and knockabout, one of the La Markoe brothers, formerly with the Zanfretta troupe, died at Baltimore, Md., on March 2d, at the age of twenty-three years. The funeral took place from the residence of his parents in that city on March 3d.

PROF. ST. JOHN, horse-educator and jester, whose address is care of this office, desires an engagement.

MONS. LEOPOLD, Mlle. Geraldine and the "Flying Roy," Leo, after concluding a successful engagement in Pittsburgh, open at the Grand Central, Philadelphia, on the 17th inst.

THE LA MARKOES, in their daring acrobatic aerial act, will visit Europe this fall, under the management of Prof. Risley.

JOHN B. DORIS (Honkey Dorey) was in New York during the last few days, and ordered some very fine paintings for his show. He returned Saturday with the Burgess Corps to Albany, N. Y.
